GOEBBELS PLANS IMMENSE POPULARITY CAMPAIGN FOR HITLER

40,000,000 VOTERS FORCED TO GIVE SUPPORT

A matter for discussion in aristocratic drawing rooms of Paris and other European cities is the possibility of a marriage between Sir Basil Zaharoff, aged munitions king and reputed millionaire, and Princess Charlotte of Monaco, shown above. Princess Charlotte is the daughter of Prince Louis de Grimaldi, ruler of Monaco.

GOVERNMENT GESTURE TO JOCKEY CLUB

BETTING DUTY ON SLIDING SCALE.

SEQUEL TO $30,000 DEFICIT

An anticipated further heavy fall in the gross receipts from the sale of pari-mutuel tickets, possibly to a figure below $4,000,000 during the current year, has caused the Government to introduce an amendment to the Betting Duty Ordinance, following a request by the Hong Kong Jockey Club.

The amendment repeals subsection one of section six of the 1931 Ordinance and substitutes the following sub-section:

(1) On every bet made on any totalisator or pari-mutuel authorised by this Ordinance there shall be charged a duty on a scale to be determined from time to time by a resolution of the Legislative Council.

The object and reasons for the amendments are set out as follows:—

The duty on pari-mutuel tickets was fixed by the Betting Duty Ordinance, 1931, at 3 per cent. of the face value of each such ticket sold. By the Betting Duty Amendment Ordinance, 1933, the duty was reduced to 2½ per cent.

MANILA TYPHOON WARNINGS

No Immediate Danger To Colony.

Warnings of two typhoons were received from the Manila Observatory this morning, through the American Consul-General.

The first is situated more than 300 miles east of Northern Luzon, and is moving west-north-west or north-west. This typhoon is some 1,000 miles from Hong Kong, but is moving more or less in this direction.

The second is located in about 138 degrees east longitude and 18 degrees north latitude, and is moving west. This typhoon is some 1,400 miles east-south-east of Hong Kong, and on its present course would pass some 700 miles south of the Colony.

WEATHER FORECAST

Generally fair, with moderate south-east or variable winds, was the weather forecast issued by the Royal Observatory this morning.

BRITAIN PREPARES FOR THE HOLIDAY EXODUS

London, To-day. The bank holiday, which is observed on the first Monday in August, is the most popular holiday of the year, and preparations for handling the heavy traffic on railways and roads during the coming week-end have been made by carrying companies.

On many services to coastal resorts outward traffic began last evening. Special augmented air services also took effect as from yesterday on routes to France and Belgium, while record bookings are expected on the inland air services to pleasure resorts in Great Britain.

Particular interest is being displayed in the arrangements made for the effective control of holiday road traffic during this peak period of the season. All available mobile police will be on duty and on busy roads around London small radio stations have been erected to co-ordinate their work in preventing unnecessary congestion, and in taking measures to minimise the risk of accidents.

BOYCOTT THREAT MEASURES.

LOCAL GERMANS ENTITLED TO VOTE

Berlin, To-day.

Dr. Joseph Goebbels, the Nazis expert propagandist, is planning a popularity campaign on behalf of the Reich Leader and Chancellor, Herr Adolf Hitler, from now until August 19, when a plebiscite will be held.

Over 40,000,000 voters must be induced to answer "yes" in favour of his stepping into the Presidency. The arrangements are so thorough that the poll is expected to be nearly 100 per cent. complete.

The voter is checked off when voting. Man, woman, official, private employee, and every tradesman is bound to vote in order not to run the risk of losing a job or being boycotted.

Germans abroad are also entitled to vote, including sailors at sea. Labour camps and concentration camps have not been forgotten.—Reuter.

British Tribute To Hindenburg.

SOUTH-WEST ATTITUDE UNCHANGED

Overtures To General Chiang Denied.

NO MEMORANDUM SENT

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday. "There is no change of policy of the South-West towards the Nanking Government," Mr. Teng Ching-yang, a member of the South-West Political Council, stated to-day to press representatives. "The South-West Political Council has not sent anyone as representative to take part in the Kuling conference."

This statement refutes propaganda reports from Nanking which stated that General Chen Chi-tang, head of the Kwangtung armies, and General Li Tsung-jen and Pai Hsueh-shi, military heads of Kwangsi, have sent by messenger a 5,000-word memorandum to General Chiang Kai-shek, Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission, requesting General Chiang to take over direct command of the Kwangtung and Kwangsi armies.

VAST TREASURY PROFIT ON SILVER PURCHASES

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL. (By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received August 4, 5.15 a.m.)

Washington, To-day.

Commenting on the United States Treasury's decision to issue U. S. $50,000,000 worth of new silver certificates, the Treasury Secretary, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, said that silver currency would be issued in such volume as to make one ounce of silver back U.S.$1.29 in silver certificates.

He said that he expected the issuance of certificates on the balance of the Treasury's stock within 60 days, after which the Treasury will continue issuing silver certificates as long as the purchases of metal continue.

IMMEDIATE DANGER NOW DISCOUNTED

SHIUKAU STILL IN REBELS' HANDS.

LATEST NAVAL REPORT

Conditions at Foochow are quiet, according to an official communication from the Naval authorities this morning.

Shiukau is still believed to be in the hands of the Communists, but there appears to be no immediate danger in view of the Government reinforcements which are now in the vicinity of Foochow, concludes the message.

H.M.S. WITCH DISPATCHED.

London, To-day.

In view of the disturbed conditions in the Fukien province of China, where Communist forces are reported to be moving in the direction of Foochow, the British destroyer H. M. S. Witch has left Hong Kong for that port to safeguard the interests of British nationals, should any emergency arise.

Similar measures have been taken by the United States and Japanese for the protection of their nationals.—British Wireless Service.

Reports earlier in the week stated that the Nanking troops had made a stand against the Communists, and that fierce fighting was raging in Western Fukien. The Communists are said to be endeavouring to take Yenping, the strategic gateway to Foochow.

LOCAL DOLLAR STEADY.

Silver Prices Decline.

The local dollar remains steady, opening on demand this morning at 1/5 3/4.

WORST YEAR IN HISTORY SAY EXPERTS

NEBRASKA CATTLE PROBLEM.

DROUGHT CONTINUES

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL. (By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received August 4, 4.48 a.m.)

Chicago, To-day.

Private experts state that the combined crop is the shortest per capita in United States history. The corn crop is also the shortest in history.

The estimates state that the combined total of wheat, corn, oats, rye and barley will be 2,800,000,000 bushels, as compared with 3,810,000,000 bushels in 1933, 5,230,000,000 bushels in 1932, and 2,442,000,000 bushels in 1894, making 1934 the shortest year in history, considering the present population.

It is claimed that the corn crop has deteriorated 600,000,000 bushels daily due to the drought and insect scourges.

UNPARALLELED DISASTER

The well-known grain expert, Mr. B. W. Snow, states: "The private reports outline a national disaster—unparalleled in American agriculture."

Another expert, Mr. H. C. Donovan, states that unless the fall of rains is triple the normal figure, the 1934 wheat will not germinate.

KEEPING WINDOWS CLEAN

Where flies are troublesome they can be kept away by rubbing the window-panes over every day with a cloth lightly smeared with methylated spirit. Take due precautions, as the vapor is inflammable.

The Woman's Page

Madras Attracts Paris Stylists

For the warm tropical evenings on shipboard, Miss Irene Hervey, motion picture player, chooses a cool organza dinner frock. It is in white with apple green cross bars. The ruffles are piped in green, and a bunch of brilliantly coloured organza flowers are caught at the neckline.

TAFFETA GOWNS FOR MORNING.

Favourite Material.

London. A visit by air to Paris has yielded a fund of fashion news of the mid-season collections.

For example, Victorian materials are being used; materials which, when you touch them, have none of the old-world stillness about them.

In Paris just now taffetas is being used for morning, noon and evening dresses.

Hats, coats, as well as one-and-two-piece outfits; check and striped taffetas frocks for dining and dancing; gloves, sunshades, handbags and blouses: all are of this favourite material, the up-to-date version of which is soft and supple and lends itself well to draping.

"SILENT FABRICS" FOR FILM STARS.

Minus Victorian Rustle

"The film world will be glad of this new departure in a British fabric which is being so extensively employed in the Paris dress houses as well as in the London ones," said Mr. E. H. Symonds, President of the British Fabrics and Fashions Bureau.

"The rustle and crackle of stiff materials interfered, in some way, with the microphone, although stiff silk was a favourite fashion medium in films before the days of the talkies."

"Now—this—favourite material can be used, since it is minus its Victorian rustle, and is a 'silent fabric'."

EASING HEELS OF NEW SHOE

If the heels of new shoes are hard enough inside to cause blisters, rub in a teaspoon of castor oil through the roan lining at that point inside the shoe. The oil will soak into the heel stiffener and make it pliable and soft without any tendency to slip or falling to grip.

AN IRONING TIP

When pressing a man's trousers use a piece of Irish linen. No need to wet this material; it dampens of its own accord while ironing. Irish linen can also be used for pressing materials that water must not touch.

Fashion Centre Turns
To New Material.

SHORT AND SAUCY

Paris. PARIS is simply in a dither about madras. It seems to have happened all of a sudden. Some say it started over a series of tailored blouses made of the stuff, some on waistcoat lines with narrow revers, others with high necks and bow ties, worn with string-coloured dark toned rough linen suits for town.

Creed's Brain-Child This madras vogue is the brain-child of young Charley Creed of the house of Henry Creed in the Rue Royale, whose tailored things are legend and legion in smart circles. Charley even has done beach costumes in this material. With a very tailored top he designs a full pleated kilt. Short and saucy, this notion already has been bought by fashion leaders who have worn shorts and shorts and who like what this abbreviated skirts does for the things and legs.

In addition to madras blouses and beach outfits, there is a crop used on the bias—with the turned back cuff and button on the outside of the wrist. And as if to prove how workable an idea this madras business is, Charley has made a madras umbrella with a mannish hooked handle of polished bamboo. He does it in natural sand shades for sunshades, and in bright all-one-colour tones. They are nothing if not ultra-saucy!

EGG-BOILER WAIST

The egg-boiler waist fortunately is not here, but it is not far distant, and there are bodices to-day with a close fit and cut of shoulder which recall the eighties vividly.

Whether milady drinks tea or cocktails, this black crepe frock worn by the charming Mac Clure, screen star, is appropriate. With sailor collar and bow of white waffle pique, it is cut very low at back. Accessories are wide-brimmed black straw hat turned up at back, white pique purse and gloves.

LONDON AND PARIS WAR ON FASHION

So the rivals meet again in Fashion's arena. Both are modernised; the textures are finer, and the selection of colours more delicate and infinitely wider in choice.

Paris and London will acclaim both this season. Members of the Society and Fashion words will wear them at the Courts and Ascot, and at all the big events of the London season in 1934.

Bright dotted silk foulard in orange and white is used for a new beach or tennis ensemble by Mary Carlisle, film actress. English plaided shorts and shirt with an elaborate matching robe to wear when the sun goes down, completes this striking costume.

THE THREE PARTS OF AN EVENING FROCKSuggests Fullness Of
The Bustle.

Like Gaul, evening frocks may be divided into three parts. The bodice mostly fits and then is often, though not always, dissimulated. It may have a fichu. It may have wide ruching down the big V of the back, or the back may run down definitely into a bustle line.

This is not a real bustle. It is effected either by means of large, stiff bows which bounce away both from the waist and the back of the knees of the otherwise closely fitting skirt, or the effect may be produced by means of a full train which starts from the waist and is pulled in sharply about eighteen or twenty inches from the waist, to go on flowing down to the floor and farther. Again, the bodice may have what looks neither more nor less than a flounce from the waist to the depth of eighteen inches. This also gives the suggestion of fullness of the bustle.

STATELY EVENING
FROCK AGAIN.

The stately evening frock has come in again. It has to be admitted that it owes its stateliness to the train, to the full length round the knees, even sometimes to the bustle or its equivalent. It is not the stateliness of Queen Elizabeth, which also was based on absurdities of the ruff and exaggerated hip. Rather is it more statuesque, more exacting of a definite type of willow figure and the chief outline is that of the sheath.

CHOOSING COLOURS AT NIGHT

Electric light makes red, orange and yellow look more brilliant and lighter in colour, greens assume a yellowish tinge, and blue a purplish hue, hence choose evening apparel under artificial light.

HAND KNITTED GOWN
FOR EVENINGLatest Creation
In Paris.

Paris. Let's all rise and give Anny Blatt a rousing vote of thanks for creating the all-time non-crean hand-knitted evening dress!

This is something for the world to conjure with, and you'll never regret having this little model in your wardrobe. Immune to dampness, the knitted evening gown can be packed into the smallest weekend bag—coming out uncrushed and ready to spring over a sprightly debutante, or slither over the hips of a dowager!

FUSSY EVENING WRAPS.Bolero-Like The Smartest.

There are wraps with a straight line across the collar bone which are academic and becoming. There are some which go back to the worst feature of Edwardian fussiness. Black taffeta is arranged in three great flounces to make a cape which is tied on with a bow in front. Five years hence it will seem to belong to the antimacassar age.

Some of the smartest wraps are little boleros in front, have tails behind, and huge kimono sleeves. Many coats have academic hoods which show off the back of the neck to advantage. The cape is rife, sometimes in two divisions which give the effect of sleeves. Generally speaking, all evening wraps are rather fussier, though some of them have good lines. They are still inseparable from the evening dress.

For the collage prom, Kitty Carlisle, film actress, wears this charming creation of tan lace, with horsehair and gold thread woven through it. Flattering epaulettes of the lace which stand up around the face, with a short peplum trailing off into a small train, are interesting features of the gown.

LOTIONS FOR THE FACE.

Astringent Application.

Astringent lotions are usually applied after a face massage, or after the face has been "steamed" with hot towels, and if proposed to go out, afterwards, in the open air. Such lotions should be sprinkled on absorbent cotton wool and gently dabbed on the skin to close the pores.

A home-made lotion is prepared by dissolving powdered alum in water, or by mixing distilled extract of witch hazel with glycerine and eau-de-Cologne. Here is one which may be made up quite cheaply.

Distilled Extract of witch Hazel 3 ounces.
Glycerine 2 teaspoonful.
Eau-de-Cologne, 1 ounce.
Elder-Flower Water to make up to 6 ounces.

WHENEVER YOU TRAVEL Take PINKETTES Too!

The hustle and bustle of travelling, the change of food and climate, often tax the digestive powers, so when packing for a journey always take a box of Pinkettes into your bag.
Pinkettes aid digestion, correct constipation, prevent sick headaches, biliousness, liver troubles, banish pimples, boils and other facial blemishes, keep the breath pure and sweet. Pinkettes are non-habit-forming and gently assist nature in its work, thus ensuring regularity of the daily habit. Pinkettes, the ideal laxative, are sold by all chemists.

BRIDGE NOTES

HOW NOT TO BID.

by Ely Culbertson.

The bidding and play of to-day's hand teach practically nothing except possibly what not to do. The various bids made by everyone, but South transcend explanation and are absolutely impossible to justify.
As for the subsequent defence, which enabled the Declarer to fulfill the contract, the West player does deserve some sympathy as his play was due not to a foolish decision but merely to an unfortunate guess.

1—A semi-psychic. The hand is not good enough for a sound Opening bid and, in my opinion, is too strong for a psychic.
2—Another would-be brilliant psychic.
3—East should redouble. However, it is probable that the East player suspected his partner's bid as being not exactly sound.

4—The first normal bid of the auction.
5—North naturally must rescue, quite properly feeling that he has misled his partner by his previous Takeout Double.

6—South admittedly was quite bewildered at this point. Not knowing whose bids were honest and whose were dishonest, he decided to gamble on a game contract, realising that if it was doubled his partner could always run to four diamonds.

West correctly opened a low heart, which South won with the King. East took the second trick with the diamond Ace and returned a heart. The Declarer decided from the bidding that the Ace of hearts was in the East hand and would have been a better play to stay off at least once.

West, of course, won with the heart Ace and laid down the Knave. Since the suit was blocked West now had a guess whether to play spades or clubs in order to allow East to collect his heart tricks.

Unfortunately, the West player guessed wrong and led a club, and the Declarer was able to take the balance of the tricks. The club Queen in Dummy won the trick and Declarer discarded all his remaining losers on the established diamonds.

As a result, the Declarer made four notrump, whereas if West had returned a spade instead of a club at Trick 5 the three-notrump contract would have been defeated four tricks.

RUSSIAN IMPERIAL VALUABLES.

New York.

Two thefts of pieces formerly used by the Russian Imperial family have occurred within the past month.

A gold on silver wine cooler, valued at $2,000, and a gold sugar bowl, valued at $500, were stolen on a shop on Park Avenue by a thief who threw a brick through the window and made off in a waiting motor-car.

The same shop had been robbed a short time previously of gem-encrusted sword, which was valued at $5,000. Other pieces in the window were untouched.

The NRA will be stepping in to prevent overproduction in the baby field if the competition keeps up. Exactly two weeks after the birth of the Dionne quintuplets in Canada, Mrs. Lawrence Wycoff, of Sac City, Ia., became the mother of quadruplets (shown top). In spite of the news, Mr. Wycoff, an unemployed labourer, manages to smile (below) as he poses with his five other children.

CLERGYMAN'S VIEWS ON MARRIAGE

Reason For Many Divorces.

LACK OF PREPARATION

Durban (Natal).

I do not think it is the experience of clergymen in this country that women about to be married are anxious to discuss with them the physical side of matrimony," said the Rev. Harry Gibbons, Vicar of St. Cyrian's, Durban, regarding the reported suggestion of Canon Pym, Chaplain of Balliol College, Oxford, at a moral welfare conference in England.

"It is a clergyman's duty, of course," went on Mr. Gibbons, "to try to clear up any difficulties put before him by candidates for holy matrimony, but pre-marital confidences of the sort indicated by the Chaplain of Balliol suggest a rather overdeveloped egotism on the part of both the questioner and the person questioned.

"Whether the priest concerned is himself married or unmarried seems to have little to do with the question, 'but I have certainly never heard of a clergyman in a country being approached by a woman on this subject, that is to say before marriage."

The Canon's argument that many divorces were due to a lack of intensive preparation before marriage was somewhat discounted by Mr. Gibbons, who maintained that what was really wrong was that people sometimes got married without realising beforehand the indissolubility of the partnership into which they were entering.

Strict Binding

The Church of the Province of South Africa, he said, was even stricter on this point than the Church in England and no clergyman would fail to impress on those whom he was about to marry the irrevocability of the step they were taking.

"Nevertheless," added Mr. Gibbons, "it is to be remembered that what may be called church marriages are nowadays gone through chiefly by people who really are members of the Church, and who accept the implication of the service—they are going through.

Fewer and fewer couples seek to be married 'in church solely on sentimental or social grounds. The registry office provides for those who do not look on marriage as a sacred thing binding them for the rest of their lives, but as a purely temporary arrangement which may be dissolved later by either party.

"Christian people, therefore, who come to the church to be married do so with a clear realisation of what they are undertaking. They have, one must assume, the Christian point of view with regard to such subjects as divorce and birth-control and the need for premarital discussion of the physical side of matrimony can hardly be said to arise."

A NEW RENT PLAN FOR LONDON?

Enthusiasm in Leeds

This is only all right if you are dealing with a first-class man. The average remainder can hardly ignore the fact that their rents will move up hand in hand with their wages.
It is fashionable to assert that the boundaries between Socialism and Capitalism are all but obliterated.
Here is one that still stands, and it is a barbed wire fence.

A storm has been raised in Leeds,
and that storm may yet hit London.
It would also be an interesting thing
if the man who raised the storm became a more than parochial figure.

The Rev. Charles Jenkinson, who has initiated the work, fired his assistants with enthusiasm and hero worship, and now carries the brunt on his own shoulders, left his parish to do civic work. He inspires his fellow-workers to believe that it is not theirs to reason why, theirs but to do and die. He is cheerfully and volubly rude to his opponents, especially the Press, has all the instincts of the dictator.
Let Geoffrey Shakespeare speak: "I have heard him described," said the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, "as 'the Roosevelt and Hitler of the North of England.'"

The Government has not produced a National Housing Board. Mr.
Jenkinson has taken action, and although his rent assessments are differential, he is clearing the slums. More power to his arm: but more sense to his methods.

"COME ON MARINES"—MAJESTIC THEATRE

The leading role of Lucky Davis, a swaggering, devil-may-care marine sergeant, is characterised by Richard Arlen, in "Come On Marines", Para-mount's current release.

Lucky Davis, who was sent back to the Philippines for misconduct, soon wins back his chevrons when a ship sinks off the coast and a boatload of children is marooned on the shore.

When Lucky and his Marine comrades arrive at the little settlement where the children are staying, it turns out that the "children" are beautiful debutantes just dying for romance.

Supporting Arlen in the cast are:
Ida Lupino, Roscoe Karns, Bradley,
Virginia Hammond, Gwenllian Gill, Lona Andre.

"FACING THE MUSIC"—LEE THEATRE

"Facing the Music," the British comedy, features Stanley Lupino in a highly entertaining film, full of brisk action and humour.

The supporting cast is a very strong one, including Joan, Collins, Nancy Brown, Nancy Burne, Lester Matthews, Dennis Hoey and Morris Harvey.

Stanley Lupino, in the role of a young man who falls in love with the niece of a prima donna, becomes involved in a series of exciting problems before he succeeds in winning her hand.

Amusements

Cinema Notes

"STAND UP AND CHEER"—KING'S THEATRE

One of Fox Film's most lavish contributions to the screen,
"Stand Up and Cheer," a musical extravaganza, is now showing at the King's Theatre.

With Warner Baxter heading the cast of prominent players,
"Stand Up and Cheer!" presents many outstanding performers of the screen, the stage, and the radio, such as Madge Evans,
James Dunn, Sylvia Fross, John
Boles, Nigel Bruce, Arthur Byron,
Shirley Temple, Ralph Morgan,
Jimmy Dallas, "Aunt Jeemima," Mitchell and Durant, Nick Foran and Stepin Fetchit.

The film, produced for Fox by Winfield Sheehan, in association with Lew Brown, was directed by Hamilton MacFadden, from an original idea suggested by Will Rogers and Philip Klein.

The musical numbers, destined to be the song hits of 1934, were written by Lew Brown and Jay Gorney, they are: "Our Last Night Together," "Baby Take a Bow,"
"I'm Laughing," "Broadway's Gone Hill Billy," and "Out of the Red." Five breath-taking spectacles, to which each of these song hits is the musical accompaniment, are only part of the most elaborate musical production ever to leave Hollywood.

"FOR LOVE OF YOU"—QUEEN'S THEATRE

"For Love of You," a hilarious musical comedy, featuring Arthur Riscoe and Naunton Wayne, a Windsor-Stirling production, is the current release at the Queen's Theatre.

Staged in the gorgeous carnival of picturesque Venice, the film offers real entertainment. Franco Foresta, the brilliant operatic tenor, sings the theme song, "For Love of You," and is ably supported by the rest of the cast.

"COMING OUT PARTY"—ALAMBRA THEATRE

Fox Film's romantic drama,
"Coming Out Party," featuring Frances Dee and Gene Raymond, is the Alhambra Theatre's current attraction.

The film lays bare the tribulations of the girl who makes her debut into society. It shows how she is placed upon the marriage auction block, sold to the highest bidder, and launched on a social career like a battleship, even to the champagne, the crowds and the bands.

One of the season's debutantes is being prepared for her social premieres. While preparations are being made for her party, she slips away to keep a secret appointment with the man she loves, a young violinist. Through a misunderstanding, the lovers quarrel and the girl goes to his apartment to explain. Their differences are soon forgotten in warm reconciliation.

Other members of the cast are Allison Skipworth, Nigel Bruce, Harry Green, Gilbert Emery, Marjorie Gateson, Clifford Jones, Jessie Ralph and Germaine de Neel.

"ROME EXPRESS"—ORIENTAL THEATRE

Excellent technique and brilliant acting are featured in "Rome Express," which, according to critical opinion, is the greatest picture
England had yet produced.

The action of the film takes place in a train, and is featured by such notable players as Eather Ralston, Conrad Veidt,
Joan Barry and Gordon Barker. It has been termed as the British response to "Grand Hotel."

"THE SECOND FLOOR MYSTERY"—STAR THEATRE

"The Second Floor Mystery," a Warner Brothers' production, is now on its first run at the Star Theatre.

The picture featuring Grant
Withers and Loreta Young, concerns the murder and the disappearance of the body of Captain Fraser. A knife thrust and a scream in the dark form the only clues in the crime which baffles Scotland Yard.

Football Club Want Tax Reduction Chairman's "Mild Protest" At Annual Meeting ASSOCIATION SUPPORT SOUGHT

ALTHOUGH a small deficit of $473.50 is shown in the accounts of the Hong Kong Football Club for the past year, Mr. H. R. Forsyth, the Vice-President of the Club, who presided at the 47th annual general meeting at the Happy Valley Clubhouse last evening, presented a very satisfactory report for the past year.

Sir Henry Pollock, K.C., was re-elected as President of the Club by a unanimous vote, and Mr. H. R. Forsyth was proposed and carried unanimously as Vice-President.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year. Chairman of the Committee, Mr. J. Ralston. Hon. Secretary, Mr. W. Pryde. Hon. Treasurer, Mr. W. L. Alexander. Committee: Messrs. C. B. Robertson, R. M. Keown and M. L. Ralston; Rugby, Messrs. S. H. Garrod, Dr. J. H. McElney, and G. C. Moutrie.

Soccer Captain, Mr. J. Skinner. Vice-Captain, Mr. A. Howe; Rugby Captain, Mr. D. McLeellan and Vice-Captain, Mr. L. G. Robertson.

Reduced Taxation
The Chairman, during his report, said:

"You will note that out of members' subscriptions we have contributed in the guise of Government Tax no less than 10 per cent. of subscriptions collected, or a sum of $441.00. It is not the amount involved in this matter of taxation, but the principle against which I should like to raise a mild protest. In our case it is possibly argued that members enjoy the privilege of free admission to Club matches, and thus gate receipts and entertainment duty thereon are, to a certain extent, less than they might otherwise be. On the other hand, as has already been pointed out, if it were not for members' subscriptions, the Club, with its grounds and stands, could not be properly maintained and accordingly matches from which taxable revenue is derived, could not be organised. It means so little to the authorities and so much to the Club that it is hoped that this form of taxation will be reduced or abolished altogether."

Aid From Association
"Donations to charities amount to $415.00, the bulk of which represents proceeds of the Rugby Seven-a-Side Tournament. In this connection, I would like to point out that our contributions to charitable institutions are no by any means fully represented by figures in the accounts. You have probably remarked that the Hong Kong Football Association contributed some $6,722 to charity during the past season."

"The Association's revenue is derived largely from gate receipts in respect of representative games, many of which are played on this Club's ground. The Club ground and three of the four spectators' stands are maintained in good condition entirely at the Club's expense and accordingly the Association benefits to the extent of having a prepared ground and other facilities to stage their matches at comparatively little expense."

"I do not mean to convey the impression that we grudge the Association these benefits—far from it—but it is not unreasonable to claim for the Club a certain contributory interest in the generous contributions which the Association is in the happy position to make to various charities."

"Before leaving the subject of finance, I would like to express our appreciation of the work accomplished by our Honorary Treasurer—Mr. L. G. Robertson. He has worked hard and most efficiently, and, at the risk of becoming unpopular, he has been commendably assiduous in reducing outstanding accounts and minimising the risk of bad debts."

"I also wish to express our thanks to Mr. D. L. Phophet for auditing the accounts now presented."

"I will now comment briefly on the general activities of the Club during the year."

Bright Season Ahead
"So far as the actual game of football is concerned, the performance of the various Club teams, their successes and failures, their occasional exhibitions of brilliance, and more frequent displays of sluggishness, have all been reviewed already by our President on the occasion of the Club Dinner. If you refer to the Committee's report which accompanies the accounts you will find a complete summary of results and a fairly comprehensive commentary on the form and activities of the Club teams. There is little point, therefore, in submitting further observations on the season now closed. Let us rather look forward to the season now beginning."

RUNNING FINED

BARE-FOOTED NEGRO FROM WEST INDIES

EMPIRE GAMES ENTRANT.

MARVELLOUS STAMINA AT DISTANCE

A VERY dark subject in the person of a West Indian milk roundsman is due to take his first look at England—and London—and incidentally to run for Trinidad in the Empire Games which commence to-day.

His name is Dookie, and he is singled out for special mention here because:

1. He will be the first man to represent the Colony in the Games.

2. He intends to run his races bare-footed.

WILL THEY OBJECT?

Having spent most of his life minus shoes, Dookie feels he would be uncomfortable in spiked pumps.

So he hopes to get on his mark without any—that is if the officials will permit it.

I have known athletic officials, frowning on the exposure of human limbs, to walk round with tape measures checking up on the length of runners' shorts.

But I don't think they can object to their feet.

FAST GOING.

The message which has reached states that Dookie, the West Indian, simply spreadeagled his field in a recent three-mile race, and with no one to push him along in the last three laps he clocked 16 min. 18 sec.

That is pretty good going, seeing that Nural, the flying Finn, set up an international record for the distance with 14 min. 11.5 sec.

The point is that the bare-footed, inexperienced Dookie finished full of running, and people in Trinidad are not sure what he can do. They have no one to extend him.

An editor of a local newspaper is providing the funds for the trip. He says Dookie is the counterpart of the great Canadian-Indian, Tom Longboat.

London, July 7.

Why Henry Cotton Declined £40 Offer For Croydon Golf Match

(By F. J. C. Pignon.)

London, July 10.

Henry Cotton, the British Open Golf champion, is angry that he has been involved in recriminations in connection with an exhibition match at Selodon Park-Croydon, last Sunday.

The officials of the club are equally annoyed, and it is possible that litigation may result.

"My name should not have been brought into the matter at all. I consider it very damaging to my reputation, and I intend to seek

Fred Perry, world's ranking No. 1 lawn tennis player, is to defend his American title this month at Forest Hills.

FAST BOWLING QUARREL

MR. A. W. CARR AND LANCASHIRE.

Duckworth Makes State Regarding Injuries.

London, July 6.

ONE of the main topics of conversation in Nottingham yesterday was the sensational news that the Lancashire Cricket Club had cancelled next season's matches with Nottinghamshire.

An official announcement made by the committee of the Nottingham County Club read:

"The committee are not prepared to issue any statement on the matter."

"It is true that Lancashire have declined to play Nottinghamshire next season. The reasons are well known, but we do not propose to carry the matter any further."

"Nottinghamshire will have a very satisfactory and full championship programme for 1935."

Mr. Carr's Statement

Mr. A. W. Carr, the Nottinghamshire captain, said:

"The reason for Lancashire's action may perhaps not be well known to the public."

"There are a number of people who are in the know and realise that Lancashire have broken their fixtures with Nottinghamshire because they dislike fast bowling."

"There was never any attempt at leg theory during the match at Trent Bridge, and although a few of the visiting players were struck on the legs, that is only to be expected when there is a fast bowler making the ball come back."

AUSTRALIAN LACKS PACE OF OPPONENT

JOAN HARTIGAN CREATES SENSATION

LAST FRENCHMAN BEATEN

(By A. WALLIS MYERS)

THE King and Queen, who were applauded warmly as they entered the Committee Box, saw the last eights come into line at Wimbledon on Saturday. Their Majesties stayed for some hours, the Queen remaining until as late as seven o'clock.

The one sensation of the day was the astonishing defeat of Mrs. Sperling, the German champion, who was favoured to win in several quarters, by Miss Joan Hartigan, champion of Australia. The Commonwealth has thus both her number one players remaining in the field.

Adrian Quist could do no more against Perry than make a bold bid for the third set when all seemed lost. Then he converted 2-4 into 4-4, and added speed to get his nose in front. But the attack on the other side was always too intensive, the pressure too remorseless, and the footwork of the enemy too fluent.

The contest was closer than the figures suggest; there were a number of long games stubbornly waged, that went to Perry after 'vantage' point against him. Yet, while Quist always made his strokes soundly and with an instinct for the correct strategy, he did not make them as quickly as Perry.

PERRY AND MISS ROUND ARE TOASTED

GLOWING TRIBUTE TO CRAWFORD

HELEN JACOBS "GALLANT SPORTSWOMAN"

London, July 10.

At the Lawn Tennis Association's dinner on Saturday night, in responding to the toast of "The Champion," F. J. Perry paid a very fine tribute to Jack Crawford, who with the rest of the Australian Davis Cup team was on his way to Prague, where they play Czechoslovakia.

"Last year Jack was on the top of the world," Perry said, "and since then he has had the hard luck to get into six finals (the American championship, two Australian championships, the French, the British hard court, and at Wimbledon) and lost them all, but with such grace and sportsmanship that he must be a great gentleman."

"When my time comes to be beaten, which probably will be next year, I hope I lost in the same charming manner as Jack did."

Gerald Patterson, an Australian who won at Wimbledon in 1919 and 1922, was moved by Perry's tribute to his countryman, and said to Mr. S. F. Perry, father of the champion, "If Fred could only play lawn tennis as well as he spoke about Jack, then he would be some player!"

I say "appeared," because just when Shields had served a crop of aces to give him the lien on the fourth set—he led 5-4 and 6-5.

France Eliminated.

The two Americans, Shields and Lott, survived duels by very different character and length. Shields was opposed to Boususs, the last remaining Frenchman, who made the bravest effort to keep his country in the field.

This contest of nearly 60 games did not furnish great tennis all the time. The absence of the ten-minute interval to which both are accustomed in their own country, brought physical reactions, and three were periods when neither could take advantage of a moral ascendancy.

Boususs showed the crowd how much he has improved since last year, especially in his backhand drives taken off the body under pressure—some of these parries were beautifully placed. But he was always fighting against the service advantage by his adversary, and as he tired so this disparity appeared to become more decisive.

I say "appeared," because just when Shields had served a crop of aces to give him the lien on the fourth set—he led 5-4 and 6-5.

FRED PERRY ENGAGED TO FILM ACTRESS

WEDDING AFTER AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN TOURS

London, Yesterday.

It was announced to-day that Fred Perry, world's No. 1 ranking lawn tennis player, has become engaged to the stage and film actress, Mary Lawson, thus following in the footsteps of Bunny Austin.

The wedding is expected to take place when Perry returns from his American and Australian tours.—Reuter.

SUSSEX LOSE FOR FIRST TIME THIS SEASON

It was a serious blow to Sussex after Hammond, not Wally Hammond, had taken 8 for 76 in a total of 351, to which Andy Sandham contributed 106. Lancashire, who were not engaged, are now only 20 points in arrears of the leaders with a game in hand. Yorkshire also received a setback. At Sheffield, where Mitchell, the Test slow bowler secured 5 for 81 to dismiss the champions for 187 and give Derbyshire the major points in a drawn game.

Brilliant bowling by G. V. Gunn, son of the veteran opening batsman, enabled Notts to secure an exciting win by 8 runs over Hampshire after being led by 97 on the first innings.

Gunn had 10 for 120 in the match, while Voce, one of the leg theory bowlers, secured 5 for 85 in the second innings when Hampshire required only 128 to win. Boyes captured 11 Notts wickets for 129 runs.

Worcester had a narrow escape at Leicester, where, at the close of play, they required 47 runs to save the innings defeat with only two wickets in hand. Wigginton, in hitting up 120 out for Leicester, scored his first century in country cricket.

Wally Hammond, who has fared very poorly against the Australians this season, scored 61 against the tourists at Bristol, but he was the only Gloucester batsman to face Fleetwood Smith's wiles with any degree of confidence. Alan Kippax retained his good form, while McCabe scored 61 not out in the drawn match.

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

At Nottingham, Notts beat Hampshire by 8 runs.

Notts: 108 (Creese 5 for 27, Boyes 5 for 88).

222 (Boyes 6 for 96).

Hants: 206 (Gunn 5 for 62).

117 (Voce 5 for 85, Gunn 5 for 58).

At Leicester, Leicester took first innings points from Worcester. Leicester: 493 (Berry 145, Wigginton 120 not out).

Worcester 248 and 240 for 8.

FRIENDLY

At Bristol, Gloucester drew with the Australians.

Australians: 308 for 2 (S. J. McCabe 61 not out, A. F. Kippax 50 not out).

Gloucester: 184 (Hammond 91, Fleetwood Smith 7 for 40).

FOOT FAULT MENACE IN TENNIS.

Auxiliary Line Now Considered.

London, yesterday.

A special committee of the International Lawn Tennis Federation has been appointed to go into the proposed change of the foot fault rule, and have recommended to the National Associations that an auxiliary line should be drawn at a distance of two feet behind the baseline, from which the server will take up his stand and keep one foot behind it during his delivery.—Reuter.

WHERE ARE LEADING JOCKEYS OF FUTURE

UNPACED CYCLE TRIALS

Good Performances By Local Clubmen.

DETAILS OF SECOND ATTEMPTS

The second series of unpaced time trials were carried out on Thursday evening, two members of the Hong Kong Cycling Club attempting the distances of 10 and 30 miles.

After unbroken rain throughout the day, the downpour ceased to allow the riders to be started by E. Munns shortly before 6 p.m. Some assistance was rendered to the competitors by an oblique wind on the outward sections of their rides, but this was countered by the opposition on the return. Hain fell before either rider finished and subsequently the roads were in a treacherous condition for the highly inflated racing tyres.

J. Coles was despatched first by the timekeeper at 5.45 p.m. and rode an improved trial to clock 34 mins. 10 secs. for his distance of 10 miles. At the half-way point he was found to be averaging 20 m.p.h. but the hard latter half succeeded in reducing his final average to 17.80 m.p.h.

Keates' Fine Ride
H. A. G. Keates, starting one minute after J. Coles, caught the latter after covering three miles and reached the turning point (15 miles) in 46½ mins. His return into the wind, with the last eight miles covered in rain and darkness, however, showed possession of a considerable reserve for the last half which was covered in a few seconds under 20 m.p.h. to clock a finishing time of 1 hr. 31 mins. 25 secs. Keates rode a new English machine fully equipped as for touring, and used a dynamo lamp which retarded his progress a little over the final miles when in use. Keates's speed was 19.69 m.p.h.

The Shanghai records for these distances are in each case a little faster. The 10 miles was first put up in 30 mins. 20 secs. and was later reduced to 29 mins. 52 secs. before finally being lowered to 26 mins. 16 secs. The 30 miles record, originally standing at 1 hr. 29 mins. 44 secs. is now held with a time of 1 hr. 20 mins. 54 secs.

Read and Wallis, who were scheduled for the 15 and 25 miles figures, failed to start. The former was under doctor's orders and the latter did consider himself sufficiently fit to attempt the distance.

CAMPBELL SWIMMING QUARTER MILE

LIONEL ROZA-PEREIRA CHALLENGED

(By G. L.)

The main attraction on the programme for the second V.R.C. swimming gala, which will be held to-night at 9.15 p.m., is undoubtedly the quarter mile handicap race open to members. This event, which will be in the nature of a preliminary try-out for the forthcoming Interport trials and championship events, will be keenly contested by some of the fastest swimmers in the Colony.

W. T. Campbell, the South Wales Borderers and Army champion, will compete in this event, and is expected to show an improvement on his best time for this distance. Lionel Roza-Pereira, the Colony's champion for the past three years, will start as scratch man, conceding 12 seconds to Campbell. Roza-Pereira's best time for this race was set up in 1931 when he covered the distance in 5 mins. 43.4/5 secs. Campbell on the H.K.I.S.A. championship last year in 6 mins 3.3/5 secs.

The other outstanding swimmer in this race is the youthful A. A. da Roza, the most improved swimmer in the V.R.C. this season. Roza jumped into prominence at the start of the season by winning the handicap 100 yards free style event from W. Lawrence, the champion in 6 2/5 seconds. He improved on this mark at the Hong Kong Volunteer meeting last Saturday, recording 60 seconds flat for the distance. Roza is now in fine fettle, displaying both stamina and speed. If he continues to improve at this rate he will seriously menace Lawrence's chances in the forthcoming championships.

The race has been carefully handicapped so that all the competitors should finish within a few seconds of each other. It is also confidently expected that each will improve on their best time for the distance.

Exciting Team Race

No less than 45 names are entered for the members' team race, forming five teams led by the club's fastest sprinters.

The club's fastest swimmers will also be seen in an interesting three styles even over 150 yards. Among the entrants are W. T. Campbell, A. A. da Roza, T. Paget, E. B. da Roza and W. Lawrence. The handicapping has been carefully arranged so that a close finish is almost certain.

The Ladies' event is now a regular feature of the V.R.C. programme and five entries have been received for the 50 yards handicap race. Miss Doris Hunt, the harbour race winner, is to concede a substantial start to the lesser qualified swimmers.

New Diving Aspirants

Several new names have been received for the diving event. The Club's new high level spring board has been the scene of much practice of late, and already several members have shown great promise.

Among the experts competing are Edward Roza, the Colony's champion, L. A. Roza, his younger brother, Lionel Roza-Pereira, E. M. Lawrence, and J. D. Remedios. The first three named won the diving contest for the Infantry at the Volunteer meeting, displaying a vast superiority over remaining entrants.

Twenty-seven members have entered for the novelty race, details of which will be made known at the start of the race.

Right after this photo was taken Jim London, the Greek who had a word for it pinned Jim Browning to the mat and won the world's heavyweight wrestling championship — for a week or two anyway. The bout took place in New York.

The final event is a water-polo match between picked teams, comprising the best playing members. W. T. Campbell, W. Lawrence, S. V. Gittins, who has come down from Canton for the gala, and C. Roza-Pereira are among those taking part.

The programme concludes with dancing to the music of Fred and His Pals orchestra in the club's ball-room.

FEW GOOD RECRUITS

NO REGULAR RIDERS FOR THE BEST STABLES

NEW BLOOD SUPPLY STEMMED.

DESPERATE SITUATION

(By ROBIN GOODFELLOW.)

LONDON, JULY 10.

MANY OWNERS AND TRAINERS ARE REALISING NOW THAT A SERIOUS SHORTAGE OF FIRST-CLASS JOCKEYS EXISTS. THEY ARE BEGINNING, TOO, TO LOOK AHEAD AND TO WONDER WHAT THE POSITION WILL BE WHEN THE BEST OF THE OLDER MEN RETIRE.

Donoghue, Childs, Carslake, Fox, and Jellies may have no definite plans about retirement; they are all riding as well as ever, but it is reasonable to suppose that none of these will continue beyond the next three or four seasons.

The most successful and reliable light-weights, J. Dines and A. Richardson, are not young men, and the fact that the services of these two are usually sought for fancied horses who have 7st. or a little more to carry in preference to those of the younger generation reflects the general condition.

An owner with a large string of high-class horses is never from preference without the retained services of a good jockey, but both the Aga Khan and Lord Glanely are in that position at the moment.

The former found before the season was begun that he was unable to make satisfactory arrangements for a rider of his own, and had no acceptable alternative but to leave it to his trainer to get for each and every occasion the best of the jockeys available.

G. Richards is engaged to ride the Aga Khan's horses on such occasions as he is free, and at other times they are ridden mostly by R. Perryman or H. Wragg. To judge from results, nothing material has been lost by this plan, but the advantage of being sure at all times of the services of a first-class rider is obvious.

Lord Glanely was influenced by the same circumstances when he sought a jockey in France, but that arrangement has not proved successful.

TREMENDOUS DEMAND.
The strong Stockbridge stable has also felt the difficulty which so many are experiencing at the present time in the jockeys.

Consider the position as it will be when the big stables have to decide their riding arrangements for next season.

There are two jockeys whose services are in greater demand than those of any other. They are G. Richards and H. Wragg.

UNSATISFACTORY.
That they are thoroughly worthy of the fortunate circumstance is unquestionable, but it is equally certain that their dominant position in the market, and the striking lack of young jockeys of obvious promise, is raising a situation which is generally unsatisfactory, and which is likely to become more so, unless something is done to encourage the production of capable apprentices and to give them the necessary experience.

Most trainers, and probably most members of the Jockey Club, disagree with me when I say that the present circumstances in this respect are due to the adoption a few years ago of the rule which raised the minimum weight in handicaps from 6st. to 7lb.

The alteration was made with the excellent intention of giving to owners a wider choice of experienced and capable jockeys, but as the effect has been greatly to reduce the occasions when riders must be given to young, light apprentices, the supply of new blood has been stemmed and a premium placed on the services of the few good men who are outstanding.

COSTLY MISTAKES.
I know the trouble inexperienced boys can make in a field of horse and how costly their mistakes and comparative inability can be, but

HENRY COTTON DECLINES.

"Then, when I had finished my second round of 65, a message was sent to my hotel offering the same fee as the Americans. I told the representative that I was not very keen and would think it over. "I did nothing more until on Thursday night when I received a telegram asking me to confirm the arrangement. To this I replied on Friday morning, 'impossible to play.'"

Mr. A. D. Sanderson, managing director of the club, said that he had not communicated with Cotton since Sunday.

"If I do," he added, "it may be through my solicitors. I am thinking it over."

"Cotton agreed to play early in the week. I did not think it necessary to confirm it in writing until my representative asked me to do so. On Thursday last I sent the following telegram:—'Confirm, Sunday, fee 240, Sanderson.' This fee each American was to be paid."

"I was therefore surprised to receive Cotton's telegram, and when my representative called at Cotton's hotel he was told that Cotton was 'too tired.'"

Shocked by the news of her disappearance, the two sisters and the father of Agnes Tufverson, centre, the missing New York City lawyer, have come to the aid of the police in an effort to solve the mystery surrounding her whereabouts. Sally Tufverson, left, of New York City, instigated the hunt for her sister which resulted in the detention in Vienna of Ivan Paderj, so-called Austrian army captain, whom Agnes married in New York. Olive Tufverson, right, of Detroit, received a cablegram from Agnes, which Paderj assertedly has admitted signing. The father, Olaf, resides at Grand Rapids, Mich.

winning his service to love in each case—the American's ground strokes wavered, and he was incapable of clinching the set.

Boussus Misses Chance.

Then Boussus missed his chance. He broke through in the thirteenth game to lead 7-6, and had 50—love on his own service.

A perfect lob on the baseline saved the American.

Yet another French reprisal could not be checked, and when Boussus, drawing strength from some invisible spring, yet looking very frail in relation to his strong-limbed opponent, advanced to 5-3 in the fifth set, the tricolour was in high favour for the match.

Alas for Boussus' heroic stand! Shields suddenly became dominant again; seven points were taken in a row: a weakening backhand found new strength, the Frenchman netted some easy volleys—and America had kept her Davis Cup team intact.

Lott Beats Hopman.

Lott, true to his record at Wimbledon this year, took time to plan and achieve victory. His two sets against Hopman showed that the American could not venture in too often—the Australian lobs and lob-volleys were too good.

So Lott concentrated on polishing up his ground strokes, intending to bring Hopman forward by variation of length, when his own top-spin lob could be used.

Hopman, though he played some delightful shots, was scarcely in training for gruelling chases on a hot day, and as his service weakened he found it hit for winners, while each successive game seemed to make Lott stronger overhead, both in service and smash.

Von Cramm bore obvious traces of his chill when he met Kirby, and his failure to kill two easy balls at the crisis of the third set—shots that no fit man could have bungled—was the beginning of the end.

In the fourth set the German was "through."

Yet Kirby's fine and forceful tennis, his eye in perfect sympathy with the lines and his volleys as good as his drives, must not be discounted by his adversary's ill-health. The South African, on his play, was fully entitled to enter the last eight.

Easy For Americans.

There were six women's singles; three of them were close, three one-sided. On her guard against new forces, and serving much better than on the previous day, Miss Jacobs beat Mlle. Goldschmidt by an unexpectedly wide margin; and Miss Palfrey was never in trouble against the Polish champion, nor Mlle. Payot required to do anything more than drive smoothly against Miss York.

Of the "three-setters" the greatest thrill came in Miss Hartigan's encounter with Mrs. Sperling, a seeded player of great match experience.

approaching. The average Club player is not lacking in individual talent, but I feel that the main business confronting the various captains and vice-captains is the welding together of this talent into a composite force which will prove irresistible. A player is of little value to his teams unless he is absolutely fit and, of equal importance unless he is disciplined.

"I am confident that among our members we have the necessary talent; the playing field is in excellent condition; the stands are cunningly designed and, when reconditioned, will accommodate comfortably the maximum number of spectators—in short, the stage is set, and I think we have every reason to anticipate a very successful season."

Success Of Bowls Green

"In the matter of lawn bowls, you will note from the report that the new green was opened to members in the spring this year. The original idea in laying the green, you will recollect, was to provide facilities for members for mild recreation during the summer season, and I am pleased to report that these facilities are proving attractive to fair number of members."

"Apart from the bowling green, which rose not from ashes but from a sea of mud, members have probably noticed the improved appearance of the Club premises. The Clubhouse has been partly redecorated inside, and additional ceiling fans installed, while outside, trees and hedges are rapidly growing to enhance further the general amenities. In connection with these improvements, I would like to mention the names of Messrs. C. B. Robertson and Sydney Strange whose interest and practical assistance in carrying them out were invaluable."

"Before concluding, I wish to express our thanks to Mr. Pryde for another year of excellent service as our Honorary Secretary. He is indefatigable—in fact, I feel he is indispensable."

"Let Him Say It"

When Mr. T. A. Higson, president of the Lancashire Cricket Club, was told last night of the statement attributed to Mr. Carr, he said curtly, "Let him say it. We shall speak at the right time."

Duckworth, the Lancashire and England wicket-keeper, said, "It is quite true I was one of the two players hit by the bowling at Nottingham, but I am not making any fuss, nor has the incident affected my personal good feelings towards the Nottinghamshire players."

"If people connected with cricket thought first about the game and about other things afterwards, it would be much better for cricket and everybody concerned."

FIRST ANNUAL MEETING.

Australian And New Zealand Assoc.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

A very satisfactory report was presented at the first annual meeting of the Australian and New Zealand Association held yesterday afternoon at the Jacobean Room of the Hong Kong Hotel, with Dr. J. D. Mathews in the Chair, supported by Mr. J. M. Kelleher (Treasurer) and Mr. N. Stockton (Secretary).

In surveying the work of the Association's first year, the Chairman said that the association had a membership of 85 but as nine of their number had left the Colony the effective membership was 76.

The election of officers resulted in Mr. J. D. Mathews being re-elected Chairman, Mr. J. R. Way Vice-Chairman and Mr. N. Stockton, Hon. Secretary. There were no nominations for Hon. Treasurer. The General Committee was as follows:—Messrs. A. E. Hughes, J. Hunter, A. W. Ingram, J. M. Kelleher, R. J. McNeill, F. J. Neill.

RUNNING FIND.

VISITORS IMPRESSED.

These little items about our Empire visitors keep drifting in to show how interesting the Games are going to be.

The South African arrivals, by the way, are much impressed by the White City track on which the events will be run. They think some "hot" times ought to be put up.

WEMBLEY'S POOL

The vast pool, at Wembley 16ft. deep at one end, with its wave-making machinery, is surrounded by 12,500 seats.

The construction is unique in that there is not a single pillar to obstruct the view.

It will be an ideal arena for big boxing, and it can be said that Mr. A. J. Elvin, the managing director, has some very big plans in this direction.

Ice skating and hockey are also to be featured, and the pool will, of course, be available for public swimming and surf bathing.

ALL MUST PADDLE

An important point is the provision of 1,200 lockers in which bathers can safeguard their clothes. Another is the provision of a shower room.

All bathers will be required to pass through this, and in doing so will paddle through six inches of running water, thus ensuring that no dust shall be conveyed into the pool.

Yet another innovation is a contrivance for steadying the water surface for racing purposes.

One thing which struck me was the colour scheme. All exit doors have been painted in bright orange. Sir Owen Williams, the architect, declares that this colour has a definite psychological effect on crowds.

People, are attracted by it, he says, and will pass more quickly through orange doors, thus ensuring speedy emptying of the arena at the close of an event.

CONSTANT HOT WATER!

Plentiful hot water at any time of day or night, without keeping a boiler constantly alight, without preparation, without delay—that is what a Davis "Shamrock" Geysers will give you. Simply turn on a tap, light the gas, and at once you have hot water—not only for baths and the like, but for drinking too if you so desire—and all of it thoroughly hot, however much you draw off. The cost for gas—small enough in any case—ceases the moment you have sufficient hot water and turn it out. A "Shamrock" Geysers will give you a constant and unfailing hot water service and save you time, labour and fuel. Order one to-day at the Gas Showrooms.

Twenty Years After.

A strange coincidence indeed that the aged Field Marshal von Beneckendorff und Hindenburg, to give him his full name, should have died on the twentieth anniversary of the day when the violation of the Belgian frontier by the German advance guards plunged the world into the war with which his name will always be connected. Born into the Junker aristocracy which for centuries had been the outpost of Western Europe against the Slav, he had entered the army as a matter of course, served on the staff and had command in Posen, and had retired on pension to his modest estate. His career appeared to be ended. Years before he had drawn attention to the tactical advantage of planning the defence of East Prussia against a Russian invasion so that if defeated the Russians would only be able to fall back on the miles and miles of marshland called the "Masurian Lakes." When he pressed his idea with persistency he was dubbed "General Mud," and his scheme was pigeonholed. Now the Russian armies had advanced in two main forces exactly into the trap which made the plan feasible; and the old General at the age of sixty-seven was "dug out" to take command. He found that General Hoffmann had already made all the necessary preliminary dispositions. When Ludendorff arrived to apply his then undimmed brilliance to the staff work, the Russian armies were duly driven into immersion in the "battles known as Tannenberg" and the "Masurian Lakes." Russia was thenceforth on the defensive until her final surrender, and the whole weight of the war fell on the Western front. England had to put Army Corps into the field instead of the two Divisions which were all that had ever been dreamed of before the war; and for at least the next two years it seemed as though the German plans, based on the advantage of interior lines, would be successful in winning the conquest of Europe, which would at that time have meant of the civilised world as well. And the old General died as President of a Republic which he had maintained against Monarchists and Communists for nine years, without for a moment concealing his loyalty to his former master the Kaiser Wilhelm. One cannot wonder that at different times he had been accused of treachery by each party in turn.

His position had a singular analogy to that of the Duke of Wellington a hundred years ago, when he consistently, to the despair of the Parties, applied his maxim "the King's Government must be carried on."

How different from the quiet farm in East Prussia was the London scene. The day before the King of the Belgians had sent his moving telegram to King George, appealing to the honour of England to stand by the tripartite treaty in which England, France, and Germany had jointly guaranteed the neutrality of Belgium. A long Cabinet meeting had been held; general mobilisation orders had been issued; and the Fleet had been kept in commission with steam up after the annual manoeuvres. An ultimatum had been telegraphed to Berlin requiring an undertaking to respect the Belgian frontier; the reply to be sent before midnight. The day before only the Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, Sir Edward Grey, and Lord Haldane had been convinced that there was no alternative to an immediate declaration of war; the Belgian appeal converted Mr. Lloyd George, who had been the leader of the peace party, and ten other Ministers followed him; only Lord Morley and Mr. John Burns resigned rather than face the facts, and thereby ended their careers. As the evening drew on a strange instinct drove countless thousands to walk towards Parliament Square or Downing Street, in silence. Several of the Ministers wandered round to No. 10 Downing Street, where they found the Prime Minister sitting with his family waiting, and joined the silent circle. At last the first note of "Big Ben" tolling out midnight proclaimed to London that England was now at war; after the hours of tension it was almost a relief to turn homewards without a word. Nobody could have foreseen these twenty years of things almost unimaginable happening; but everybody felt that the great bell had sounded the knell of an epoch, and that nothing would ever be the same again.

That of course is true; but it is surely time that some other form of national co-operation should begin to appear. The greatest loss is that reliance on treaties and contracts has gone. More treaties are made than ever before; but nobody knows whether they are not just so many "scraps of paper." The "war to end war" has left the peoples who have seen enemy forces march through their country with a suspicion that anything may happen at any time. The first step to recovery is to create confidence that an agreement will hold; till it is revoked by the mutual consent of the contracting parties.

EXPLOITING THE POLICE

Mr. Oliver Stanley told a story at the House of Commons about a motorist who went abroad for a few months. To avoid garage fees, he left his car in a side street.

The police removed it and paid for storage. The owner, on his return, failed to meet the bill.

There is a better version of that story.

The motorist, nable to sell his car, abandoned it in a side street and went to live abroad.

The police stored it, traced the owner, and suggested that they should sell the car to cover the garage charges.

This was done, and a cheque for £20, representing the balance, sent to the delighted owner.

COWARD, BY COWARD

It is understood that Mr. Noel Coward, who has been writing his autobiography for nearly two years, has completed nearly half his task.

He has written about 100,000 words of a book which will probably run to 200,000.

Mr. Coward will not commit himself to a date for its completion. He may finish it quickly on a wave of enthusiasm; he may take another year or two.

The book is not yet sold to a publisher.

It will disappoint, he says, those who expect an autobiography to be sugar and spice—mostly spice.

The book is a psychological study of the processes which have made Mr. Coward what he is to-day—a serious-minded young man who works twice as hard as most of his contemporaries.

There is, however, one chapter which begins: "At this time I knew the following people well enough to call them by their Christian names."

A long list of celebrated names follows.

They are not mentioned again.

Your Daily Smile!

"Hm! Does it?" he replied. "Well, I've heard some that positively makes mine boil."

They drifted together in a corner of a West End drawing-room.

"Slow, isn't it?" said one, by way of starting a conversation.

"Yes, very," was the reply.

"How about leaving?"

"I can't; I'm the host."

A NEW RENT PLAN FOR LONDON?

DIFFERENTIAL SYSTEM EXPERIMENT

LEEDS SETS EXAMPLE

(By Anthony Winn.)

THERE is a journalistic platitude that you should never tell an inhabitant of London anything new of any other city. This postulated Londoner is, apparently, either so deeply wrapped in his conceit or so thin-skinned that news of a better High-street in Birmingham, a nobler swimming-bath in Salford, or a finer park in Newcastle, would be as fatal as the report that Birmam Wood had come to Dunsinane.

Nevertheless, there is a great deal going on at the moment in Leeds of which London ought to know, especially when London has itself to thank for a Socialist County Council and a number of Socialist borough councils.

The news from Leeds is, in certain aspects, unequivocally bad. But it is alive and new and we may yet see its like in London; for other Socialist councils are sure to borrow the idea, and the Ministry of Health applauds, hoping that some of the credit, if there is any, will overflow into Whitehall.

The activity takes two forms—slum clearance and differential rents. The former is of more importance to Leeds, the latter to the country at large. The scheme by which the City Council is attacking the old cancer of back-to-back houses is imposing on paper: under the 1930 Act 30,000 houses should be demolished in six years and an equal number built in seven and a half. There will be a large estate at Moortown, four miles north of the city. Critics calculate that when the men who live on the new estate go to work in the morning the four-mile road will be a solid block of trams (with no underground, as at Morden and Dagenham to help them out).

It will be a field day for the tenants when they get into the new estate, where narrow streets, communal sanitation, and north aspects are all a bad memory. Furthermore, they will be subsidised tenants under the Greenwood Act of 1930: and, as a further bonus to the unlucky and the feckless, "differential rents" will serve as visible evidence of sympathy for the unemployed. If you think the system right you are a Socialist; if wrong a Conservative.

Differential Assessment

The principle of differential rent assessment has been applied in small towns, such as Kendal and Banbury, but never in a city as big as Leeds, where, therefore, the present experiment is likely to be the test case for one aspect of all Socialist administration. The theory and practice arose from the fact that out of 5600 Corporation houses in Leeds a high proportion were inhabited by tenants who could afford to pay more than was asked of them. Taking a leaf out of the Kendal and Banbury book, the Rev. Charles Jenkinson and the Socialist Council argued that these prosperous tenants should not benefit from the subsidy, but should pay the full economic rent for whatever type of house they lived in. For the less prosperous there is a graded scale of rents, and the poorest pay none at all. 4800 of the 5600 tenants saw their chance, and applied for a rebate. A committee of five, containing Mr. Jenkinson and two Conservative members, sat on these applications.

This committee has so far published no summary of its investigations, but there is available the dissent of the Conservative members and the undeniably satisfactory financial statement issued a week ago. Although the scale of relief is generous—for example, unless a family of three has a minimum weekly income of 23s. it pays no rent at all—there is still £5,000 left in the pool. The committee were entitled to spend the total amount available, but they did not do so.

On the face of things, therefore, the Socialists have satisfied their principles of abstract justice (while they have at the same time travelled smoothly towards a future where they will satisfy the principles of concrete justice).

If there must be a housing subsidy it is right that the subsidy should benefit those who need it. It is right also, in theory, that if a large proportion of tenants in these Corporation houses are well-to-do artisans and black-coats, they should not benefit.

"Good" tenants came in because the council had an intelligible but short-sighted weakness for those, who by their ability and decency, would make the property a credit. Prevention having failed, the Socialists have tried a cure that has the following ineluctable defects.

System Summed Up

1. If at any time the amount of money in the pool is insufficient to grant relief on the proposed scale, the deficiency will be made up out of the rates. The present surplus—on 5,600 tenancies—is no guarantee of similar solvency when tens of thousands—mostly able to qualify for relief—are out at Moortown.

Raising the saucy qui pent of "Populism" is the municipal equivalent to crying "wolf!" when the flock is in no danger. But I think that the danger is a genuine one this time, and whatever experiments from their past intelligent Socialists wish to repeat, I cannot believe that Populism is among them.

2. At present the scheme is administered by popularly elected representatives. That is to say, the job is being done by a small body of men lacking the experience and the time to deal with several thousand applications properly.

3. The alternative to the present amateur organisation is a local Civil Service, which, Mr. Jenkinson told me, can be set up. Just another branch of bureaucracy, and furthermore, a redundant one that will overlap the work of the Public Assistance Committee. The latter gives outdoor relief and the former will give rent relief.

The whole system is summed up in Mr. Jenkinson's words: "It is no merit of mine that I occupy a certain economic position, nor a demerit of someone else that he occupies a lower economic position." Hence the theory of differential discrimination (a) between municipal and private tenants, (b) between successful and unlucky municipal tenants. The profit incentive to good workmen is undermined. "Oh," say the Socialists, "just what we wanted to do."

THREE MEN SAVED BY CORPSE

Snatched From Cuban Gallows,

SEQUEL TO BOAT TRAGEDY

Oso. News has been received here that three Norwegians, sentenced to death in Cuba have been saved at the last minute from the hangman's rope—by the finding of the corpse.

One of the seamen had hired a Cuban boatman to row him over to his ship in Havana harbour. On the way their dinghy capsized. Their cries were heard by the second mate of the Norwegian ship, who succeeded with another seaman in rescuing the Norwegian, who managed to cling to the upturned boat. The Cuban had disappeared.

The following morning the three Norwegians were arrested for the murder of the Cuban, taken ashore, summarily tried and sentenced to death.

The Norwegian Consul protested but the only concession the court would make was to postpone the execution of the sentence while a search was made for the body of the missing man.

For three days the Norwegians were kept in prison with the certainty that if the body were not recovered they would be hanged. On the fourth day the boatman's body was found and, as it bore on it no mark of violence, the three men have been released.—Reuter.

PRICES WEAKER ON WALL STREET

Silver Prices Rule Steady.

BOND MARKET FIRM

New York, To-day. With the exception of bonds, prices were weaker on the New York Market yesterday. Silver prices were steady. Business was again dull, only 466,000 shares being traded.

Industrials and rails were off .73 and .88 to 90.14 and 35.33, respectively, while utilities declined 26 to 20.46. Bonds advanced .18 to 93.88. The commodity index weakened .33 to 60.28.

S. E. Levy and Company's Report. In their market report, Messrs. S. E. Levy and Company, correspondents for Messrs. White, Weld and Company, New York state:

"Stocks:—In the absence of any clue as to the next Governmental move in the process of business stimulation, prices seem likely to drift lower.

"Our opinion continues to be that the market generally is in the buying zone and we would make purchases on any weakness.

"Bonds:—High-grade issues are firm, while second-grades are unchanged.

"Cotton:—Prices are lower. Rumours of the possibility of a large crop than had been anticipated caused liquidation and Southern selling.

"We would suggest partial reduction of positions before publication of the Government crop report.

"Silver:—Prices are steady. Hayden, Stone was a large buyer.

"Business done:—60 contracts.

"Rubber:—Prices are strong on continued speculative trade buying. We continue to recommend purchases.

"Business done:—500 lots.

"Wheat:—Prices were slightly downward on lack of any new incentive to stimulate buying.

"Business done:—53,102,000 bushels."—Reuter.

Night Telegram. Favourable factors before the opening of the market were:—

Good second-quarter earnings reports and the imminence of President Roosevelt's return, while the Treasury announcement that Silver Certificates are being put into circulation is reviving the demand for inflationary issues.

Unfavourable factors were:—

Traders are still watching European developments very closely. Rallies lack follow through.

The market is firm and slightly more active, with fractional gains predominating. Some moderate extension of yesterday's late rally seems indicated.

Loew's Inc. net profit for the 40 weeks ending June 7 totalled $5,751,000, equal to $3.45 per common share, compared with $2,336,000, equal to $1.11, for the same period last year.

E. A. Pierce Co.'s Report. In their market report, the American Oriental Finance Corporation, correspondents for Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Company, New York, state:

"Stocks:—Low levels were made in the final half hour of trading on a slightly increased volume of selling. The effect on the market of the Chrysler report may continue.

"Wheat:—The movement of winter wheat is diminishing. The lack of sub-soil moisture for the Fall plowing and seeding is becoming a factor.

"Grain:—Corn held well in spite of profit-taking developing. The drought in the main Grain Belt is unrelieved and reports continue of deterioration in three prairie provinces.

"Cotton:—The weather is better but there is persistent liquidation in excess of Trade off-take. The average guess of Cotton Exchange members as to the Cotton crop was 9,434,000 bales.

"Silver:—Interest was small due to lower cables. As the official bid advanced, offerings increased.

"Automobile:—The Automobile output in the U.S.A. during the past week amounted to 59,412 units. Money in circulation has increased by $24,000,000.

"Crown, Cork and Seal has declared dividend of 25 Cents.

Divided Opinion In U.S.

(SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL. (By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received August 4, 1.08 a.m.)

New York, To-day. In connection with the question on business conditions sent to all parts of the nation by Messrs. C. W. Young and Co., investment managers, 45 per cent. of the answers believed that 1934 will be a better year than 1933, while 14 per cent. express the same opinion with qualifications. The remaining 41 per cent. declare that 1934 will not be such a good year as 1933.—United Press per S. E. Levy and Company.

WINES AND LIQUORS IN AMERICA.

June Imports Nearly Same As May.

(SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL. (By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received August 4, 1.08 a.m.)

Whiskey was the largest item, being valued at U.S.$1,557,167. Canada and the United Kingdom furnishing the bulk.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

GOVERNMENT GESTURE TO JOCKEY CLUB

(Continued from Page 1) For the year ending March 31, 1934, the Hong Kong Jockey Club's accounts showed a loss of over $30,000. Their gross receipts from the sale of pari-mutuel tickets were $4,341,930, and the duty paid thereon was $108,548.

It is thought possible that in the current year the gross receipts from this source may fall below $4,000,000.

In these circumstances, at the request of the Jockey Club, it has been considered fair to introduce a sliding scale to govern the payment of this duty, but to introduce such a scale into the body of the principal Ordinance would be cumbersome, especially as it is not necessarily intended to be final.

Hence the amendment proposed by this Bill leave the scale to be fixed by resolution of the Legislature.

A copy of the resolution will be put to the Legislative Council as soon as this Bill becomes law is appended.

CARL HUBBELL AGAIN IN GREAT FORM

Giants Beat Phillies In U.S. Baseball.

GEHRIG HITS TWO HOMERS.

New York, To-day. Carl Hubbell, star pitcher of the New York Giants, world champions, won the game for the Giants in the major League baseball yesterday by shutting out Philadelphia Phillies for nine innings. Vergez hit a homer for the Giants who won 2 to 0.

Lou Gehrig scored a personal triumph in the American League by hitting two circuit clouts against the Philadelphia Athletics, enabling the New York Yankees to win by a 5 to 1 margin.

The Detroit Tigers routed the Chicago White Sox by a 14 to 1 tally. Rowe pitched to blank the White Sox for nine innings.

Results, as cabled by Reuter, were:

American League R. H. E. Philadelphia 1 8 0 New York 5 10 0 Lou Gehrig hit two homers.

Chicago 0 1 3 St. Louis 4 6 3 Cleveland 6 10 2 Detroit 14 16 2 Greenberg hit a homer.

MONACO LOSE SINGLES Hague, To-day.

Holland is leading Monaco by two matches, having won both singles matches.

Scores, as cabled by Reuter, were:—

Timmer (Holland) beat Gallepe 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4. Knottenbelt (Holland) beat Landau 2-6, 6-2, 5-7, 8-6, 7-5.

MATCH ABANDONED Budapest, To-day.

Hungary is leading Norway by one match to nil in the second qualifying round of the Davis Cup, Straub beating Smith.

The match between Gabrovitz and Haanes was abandoned in the third set owing to darkness.

Scores, as cabled by Reuter, were:—

Straub (Hungary) beat Smith 5-7, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2. Gabrovitz (Hungary) led Haanes 6-2, 6-4, 9-11.

To-day's Short Story.

REMNANT OF '22

By Kathleen Warren.

THIS is a true story; it ends in a curious place in a curious way. It ends grimly, but that is not strange, for the story began in the trouble of 1922, and all stories beginning there seem to end grimly, whenever and wherever they may work out.

I was sitting in a big popular restaurant when the man came in: big and rugged, dark-haired, blue-eyed, wide-mouthed, a real plug-ugly Irish face had this man. He sat at my table, so I could see every movement; I saw him pull out an Irish newspaper and begin to read it with the pathetic, hungry look of an exile, searching through every column for news of a place or people he had known.

And then the girl came in; I saw at once the racial similarity between the two, and thought it rather strange that two Irish people should pick the same table to sit at. They recognised each other almost at once, and the man half-rose from his chair in amazement and gladness.

Then it was all "Michael" and "Maureen", and exclamations befitting the occasion of this meeting between two who had not met for ten years.

"Since the Trouble it is, Maureen, ten years since I have seen you, and you still the belle of them all," said the man in his deep, soft-toned voice, his big hands gripped over hers.

She laughed quickly, thrillingly, her dark, sad blue eyes searching his swarthy face.

"Is yourself has not changed, Michael Donovan," she answered slowly. "I have never been the same since the night that Paddy—that Paddy—died." She dropped her head, staring at the table with intent, wistful eyes. The man winced at her words, but his hands tightened, and he spoke gently to that bowed head.

"You were gone, the night they killed him? Ah, yes, they were after you too, and chased you out of your own town, the beasts, two days afore. I remember how happy we were but one week before, when Paddy and I told you of our engagement, and everyone was blessing us, and you sat by yourself for a while, black-faced, and grim, so that I was feared av you; then you came, and crushed my tight hand. 'I'll bless you, too, Maureen macushla, and give luck to Paddy, though 'tis the plague I'm wishing would carry him off, 'deed it is.' Then we both laughed, and Paddy came to hear, his dear eyes shining so, and his hair all rumpled up.

"And a week later you were in hiding and two days gone, and Paddy was dead, and Paddy's people had killed Terence Flanagan." She finished, and sat quiet, her eyes filled with a fierce, hot glare of remembrance.

Michael tried to say something, but choked on it several times, his face twisted. Finally he whispered: "Tell me av it, mavourneen; for I never heard the truth—only strange, wild rumour; only, if it hurts ye, then rest."

But she shook her head and plunged into the passionate, bitter tale. "Twas the night of the Donnelly's party; the daughter Rose—you remember her, don't you?—had been promised to young Murphy, and this was the engagement party. Paddy took me, and we stayed late, after two or so, dancing and singing, such a joy av it we had. But when we were ready to leave old Donnelly took Paddy aside and said: 'Do ye think it safe to go, lad? They are out every night the now, looking for more murder.'

"I heard, and clutched hold of Paddy, demanding that he should stay, but he passed it off, laughing at me, and telling Donnelly 'twas all right; he was safe-guarded. Then he winked and patted his pocket, so that I knew he had his gun, and felt less nervous. So we went on our way, me hanging on his dear arm and he smiling down at me, joking.

"As the light from the Donnelly's windows died behind us into a little blur, and I saw the long blackness ahead, I felt a chill down my back, for I was afeared for him. 'Tis a long way, me dear, and I know the blackguards are thirsty for blood; turn back, stay the night at the Donnelly's, I begged him; but on we went, all down that dreary road, so cold, and I felt the dark pressing down on us, shutting us off from everyone, and the trees drooped and whined, ragged and tortured in the wind.

"I knew we should come to the cross-roads in a minute, and I felt certain sure something would happen there, where four roads ran across each other, all sombre and wind-chased at night, one road a muck-heap, and another all grit and gravel, where the horses slipped and fell Jack Carney had been shot there but a month before, and they found him lying in the ditch, half-covered with stagnant water, his hair all dragged and woven with weeds, and his poor hands stiff with clay, as though he had been trying to pull himself up. And his eyes! Scarpa, I went sick just from a look at him, and his poor mother fell to a twitching, the veins all corded in her neck, till she had a fit.

"Paddy Halloran? Ah, that was the bitter, bad luck, macushla. When I heard av it, I put down me head, and cried like a foolish baby, for you know, he and I were friends always, for all we both loved you. Do you remember how we both followed you about, and how I swore, like the black beast I was, to kill Paddy if you loved him the best. Do you remember?"

Maureen was smiling now, looking at him with tenderness; neither took any notice of me, and no one else took any notice of them. But I heard every word of that low spoken conversation.

The girl was speaking again.

"As the light from the Donnelly's windows died behind us into a little blur, and I saw the long blackness ahead, I felt a chill down my back, for I was afeared for him. 'Tis a long way, me dear, and I know the blackguards are thirsty for blood; turn back, stay the night at the Donnelly's, I begged him; but on we went, all down that dreary road, so cold, and I felt the dark pressing down on us, shutting us off from everyone, and the trees drooped and whined, ragged and tortured in the wind.

"I knew we should come to the cross-roads in a minute, and I felt certain sure something would happen there, where four roads ran across each other, all sombre and wind-chased at night, one road a muck-heap, and another all grit and gravel, where the horses slipped and fell Jack Carney had been shot there but a month before, and they found him lying in the ditch, half-covered with stagnant water, his hair all dragged and woven with weeds, and his poor hands stiff with clay, as though he had been trying to pull himself up. And his eyes! Scarpa, I went sick just from a look at him, and his poor mother fell to a twitching, the veins all corded in her neck, till she had a fit.

The Treasury has estimated that 25,000,000 ounces will remain unobligated after the U.S.$50,000,000 currency is circulated, the remaining silver representing the Treasury's profit, since the price paid averages 75 cents per ounce, whereas the value is U.S.$1.29 for backing currency.

There will be over U.S.$750,000,000 worth of silver money outstanding when the new U.S.$50,000,000 issue is circulated.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

The horse kicked Mayor Liu on the right shoulder, which was seriously injured. He fainted and later was taken to his home in the official compound of Plum Blossom Village, Tungshan.

During his confinement at home, Mayor Liu has designated his municipal duties to Mr. Luk Yau-kong, Secretary-General of the Canton Municipal Council. Though promoted to Secretary-General of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, Mr. Luk presided at the municipal meeting yesterday.

No important resolutions will be made by the city Government until Mayor Liu is well enough to consider first all the proposals.

U. S. GRAIN DISASTER (Continued from Page 1)

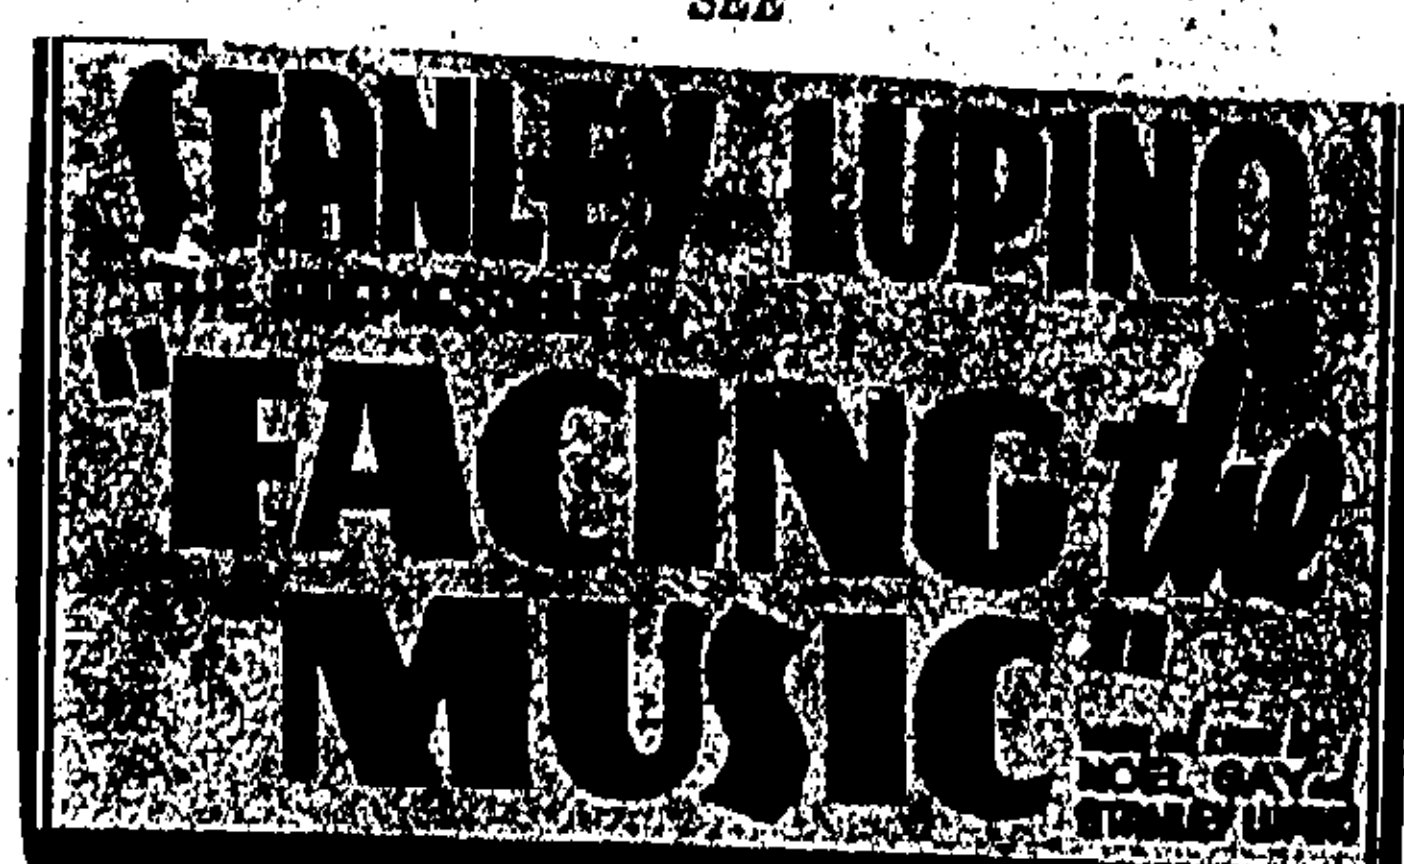

Mr. H. J. Gramlick, the Nebraska Federal Relief Director, said that the State's corn had failed, and that 2,000,000 cattle must be removed from the State owing to the absence of food.

Temperatures yesterday ranged from 103 degrees at Kansas City to 92 degrees at Omaha. Fields are barren. The earth is cracked open and streams are dry.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

FOOD AND HOME ECONOMICS

APRICOT MOUSSE

Delightful Frozen Desert.

1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
4 tablespoons cold water
1 cup mashed cooked apricots
1/3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon salt
2/3 cup diced marshmallows
1 cup whipped cream
Soak gelatin in water 5 minutes. Dissolve over hot water. Cool. Add rest of ingredients excepting cream; chill overnight in ice box. In the morning add cream and pour into tray in mechanical refrigerator. In four hours this dessert be frozen.

JELLIED CHEESE RING.

Tempting Dish For Summer.

1 1/2 tablespoons gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
3 cups scalded milk
8 egg yolks
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon mustard
1/2 teaspoon paprika
2 cups strained cheese
Soak gelatin in cold water. Beat the eggs with the seasonings and stir in a little of the milk and stir over hot water until it begins to thicken. Stir in the cheese and when melted remove from fire and stir in softened gelatin. Pour into a ring mold and chill until set. Unmold onto a platter or chop plate and garnish with pimiento. Fill centre with mixed vegetable salad.

French Dressing Easy This Way.

1/3 cup white vinegar
2/3 cup olive oil
1/4 teaspoon mustard
3 tablespoons sugar
Salt and pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
Combine vinegar with dry ingredients. Then add oil slowly, continuing to beat until all the oil is added. One egg white whipped into this mixture will improve the emulsion. If oil is not desired, one-third cup of melted butter can be substituted for one-third cup of oil. If this dressing is kept in refrigerator, it should be shaken well before serving.

Asparagus Salad Somerset.

1 cup diced cooked asparagus
1/2 cup diced cucumbers
1/4 cups diced radishes
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped pickles
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons French dressing
Mix, chill ingredients and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

RUSSIAN DRESSING.

1/4 cup anchovies or anchovy paste
1 cup French dressing
Add French dressing slowly to anchovies, mixing well until all dressing is added.

Strawberry Dessert.

2 cups whipped cream
1/3 cup confectioner's sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups berries, washed and hulled
2/3 cup granulated sugar
8 slices angel food cake
Mix and chill whipped cream, confectioner's sugar and vanilla. Mix and chill berries and granulated sugar. When ready to serve combine chilled mixtures and serve on cake slices. Serve with a fork.

LEMON JUICE ON FRUIT SALADS

A little lemon juice, sprinkled over fruit-vegetable, fish or meat salads just before they are served, greatly improves the flavour.

Nut Bread Gives Change

Can Be Made Into Finger Rolls.

1 cake yeast
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup milk, scalded and cooled
3 cups sifted flour
2 tablespoons shortening
1/3 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup chopped walnuts
Dissolve yeast and one tablespoon sugar in lukewarm milk, add 1 1/4 cups flour; beat thoroughly. Cover and set aside in warm place 50 minutes or until light. Cream shortening, add sugar and beat well; add to yeast mixture; add stiffly beaten egg white, salt and remainder of flour or enough to make a dough; mix in nuts. Knead well; place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until double in bulk, about 2 1/2 hours. Mould into a loaf or small finger rolls, and place in well-greased pans. Let rise again until light, about 1 hour. Bake in moderate oven at 400 degrees F. about 45 minutes. Bake finger rolls in hot oven at 450 degrees F. about 8 minutes.

ORIGINAL SWEET FOR DINNER

Indian Cream

It is often difficult to think of an original sweet for a dinner party or for some other special occasion. Indian cream is a delicious sweet which will be found to be greatly appreciated. Cut up a fresh pineapple thinly into half-moon slices. Poach these slices for about ten minutes in sweetened water. Vanilla. Leave them to drain on a cloth.

In the meantime grease a pudding basin and dust it over with castor sugar. Arrange the pineapple slices at the bottom and round the sides of the basin so that they overlap one another. Fill the rest of the basin with a mixture consisting of the following ingredients beaten up well together: the whites of three eggs beaten to a stiff froth, two ounces of ground almonds, a quarter of a pound of castor sugar, and a drop of vanilla essence.

Cover the basin and steam the mixture for half an hour. Allow it to cool and then turn it out on a dish and decorate with a little whipped cream.

EGGS COOKED IN BASQUE STYLE

A Simple Recipe.

8 hard cooked eggs
1/2 cup finely chopped ham
1/3 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 egg, well beaten
2 tablespoons cold water
1 cup rolled bread or crumbs
Cut eggs in halves lengthwise. Remove and mash egg yolks. Add ham, celery, green peppers, salt and pepper to egg yolks. Refill egg cases and press halves together. Dip filled eggs in egg to which cold water has been added. Roll in crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat until light brown colour. Serve with Tomato Sauce.

PLAN SCONES

Rub 1oz. butter into 1/2 lb. flour, add a teaspoonful of baking powder and a pinch of salt, and mix in enough sour milk to make into a dough. Roll out and cut into rounds, brush over with the white of an egg, and bake in a fairly quick oven for about a quarter of an hour.

INVITING DESERT FOR HOT DAYS

Fresh strawberries mixed with fresh or canned pineapple, sweetened and chilled, make a refreshing dessert and, one especially inviting to serve after a rather heavy meal.

BIRTHDAY PARTY CAKE

4 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons flavourings
2 cups sugar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
2 cups cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
Beat eggs until very light with rotary egg beater. Beat in salt, sugar and flavouring. Beat in the milk which is boiling hot and which has been heated with the butter. Sift flour once before measuring. Beat in the flour and baking powder which have been sifted together. Pour very quickly into two greased and floured 9-inch layer pans and bake immediately in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. from 25 to 30 minutes.

LEMON SAUCE.

1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg yolk, well beaten
1 cup boiling water
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Grated rind 1/2 lemon
Combine cornstarch and sugar with egg yolk; add boiling water slowly stirring constantly until smooth. Cook over boiling water until mixture thickens. Remove from heat, add lemon juice, rind and butter. A few gratings of nutmeg may be added if desired.

CHOCOLATE COOKIES

2/3 cup fat
2 cups sugar
3 squares chocolate, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup cream
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
3 eggs
3 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
Cream fat and sugar. Add chocolate, vanilla, salt and cream. Mix well. Add rest of ingredients and drop portions from tip of spoon onto greased baking sheets. Bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

FRUIT SALAD DRESSING

2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons sugar
Juice of two lemons
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 cup strained honey or maple syrup
1/2 cup whipping cream
Mix honey or syrup, flour and sugar. Cook in double boiler for 10 minutes. Add lemon juice and beaten egg yolks slowly and cook for five minutes, stirring constantly.

HINT WHEN SERVING CELERY.

To dice celery, freshen the stalks in cold water and wash thoroughly. Then cut the stalks in small sections, lengthwise. Lay several stalks together on a board and cut crosswise. Tiny leaves may be used for garnishing, while larger leaves may be dried for soups.

How To Seat Your Principal Guests.

Always have the guest of honour sit at the right of the hostess at a luncheon or dinner. If it is in honour of a man and a woman, have the woman sit at the right of the host and the man sit at the right of the hostess.

TO CLEAN BAKING DISHES

To clean baking dishes and pans, soak them in hot water to which washing soda has been added. Use one tablespoon of soda for each quart of water required to fill the article.

USE FOR LEFT-OVER COOKED HAM

Left-over cooked ham mixed with hard cooked eggs, celery and dressing makes a good salad to serve for luncheon or supper. This should constitute the main course.

Sponge Cake Waffles

Ideal For Informal Suppers.

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup cake flour
3 tablespoons melted butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup cold water
1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
Beat eggs until light. Beat in sugar. Sift flour once before measuring. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Beat into the egg mixture. Beat in melted butter, cold water and lemon extract. Preheat iron about 10 minutes. Bake on a hot waffle iron until delicately browned, about 2 minutes. For shortcake, sprinkle with confectioner's sugar and serve with berries and whipped cream, or top with ice cream and fruit.

CREAM OF VEAL FOR DINNER

How To Prepare Potato Case.

For one meal, you will need two or three ounces of leg of veal, a couple of tablespoonsful of white sauce, and a dessertspoonful of minced ham (if liked).

Wash and dry the meat, after removing skin and any gristle, wrap it in grease-proof paper to make it air-tight, and cook it slowly for three-quarters of an hour in the oven. Remove paper, and leave the meat to grow cold. Then mince it finely, mix it with white sauce, the minced ham, and seasonings to taste of salt and pepper. While the veal is cooking, prepare POTATO CASE: Mash two ounces boiled potatoes with butter, season, and bind with half an egg yolk. Form into a ball, flour lightly, and flatten top and bottom. Brush with remaining half-egg yolk, roll in breadcrumbs, and mark a circle in the centre of the top with a cutter, going fairly deeply into the potato. Fry in deep fat, drain, and remove the lid made by the cutter. Scoop out some of the inside, leaving a firm under the grill or in the oven, and case. Fill the case with the veal cream, piling it up on top, re-heat serve with a slice of lemon.

VEAL SALAD LOAF.

1 package lemon flavoured gelatin mixture
1-2/3 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
2/3 teaspoon salt
1/3 teaspoon paprika
1/2 cup diced celery
2 cups chopped cooked veal
Pour water over gelatin mixture, stir until dissolved. Cool, allow to thicken a little. Add rest of ingredients, pour into glass mould. Chill until stiff.

Lemon Cheese.

When eggs and butter are cheap the housewife may replenish her stock of lemon cheese for when sealed in jars it will keep good for a long time. The following is an excellent recipe. Put the juice of two lemons and the rind of one, with two ounces of butter and half a pound of lump sugar, into a saucepan. When dissolved add two eggs well beaten and stir well until the mixture thickens. This quantity can be doubled.

ST. PAUL'S MEMORIAL TO SURVEYOR

A memorial tablet to Sir Mervyn Macartney, a former surveyor to St. Paul's Cathedral, was unveiled in the crypt of the Cathedral last month by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, President of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

ORANGE HONEY TARTLET

Pleasant Change From Jam.

This attractive preserve is a pleasant change from jam and lemon curd as a filling for tartlets, and can also be used to spread sweet sand-wiches for tea.

To prepare take 1/2 lb. of fresh butter and wash in cold water until white. Place it with one cupful of castor sugar in a double boiler and melt carefully. Take one whole egg and two egg yolks and beat together; then add the juice of two oranges, the grated rind of one orange and one tablespoonful of strained lemon juice. Jaffa oranges are now in season, and being large and juicy are excellent for the purpose. Beat these ingredients together well, and stir slowly into the sugar and butter mixture in the double boiler. Stir over the fire until the mixture thickens, filling up the water in the base of the double saucepan as it boils away. When thick put into glass jars and tie down in the normal way to exclude air, and store in a cool, dry place.

LEMON SHERBET FOR THE KIDDIES

Delightful Drink For Hot Days.

1 cup granulated sugar
1 pint water
1/2 cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons orange juice
1/16 teaspoon salt
2 egg whites
1/2 cup coffee cream
Cook sugar and water slowly for ten minutes. Cool. Add to strained fruit juice. Pour into freezing tray and freeze firm. Remove to ice-cold mixing bowl, and beat with rotary beater until very light. Add coffee cream and fold in stiffly beaten egg white to which salt has been added. Pour into tray and allow to finish freezing, without further agitating.

Carrot Strips

2 cups carrot strips
4 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 teaspoon paprika
Wash, scrape carrots. Soak 20 minutes in cold water. Cut into strips 2 inches long, 1/2 inch wide. Add salt to water and when boiling add strips and boil 10 minutes. Drain, add rest of ingredients and heat one minute.

Asparagus Salad

4 pieces crisp lettuce
16 spears cooked asparagus
1 hard cooked egg, sliced
1 tablespoon chopped pickles
1 teaspoon chopped onion
2 tablespoons catsup
1 teaspoon horseradish
6 tablespoons mayonnaise
Chill ingredients. Arrange lettuce on plates and top with remaining ingredients.

KEEPING TOMATOES FRESH

When stuffing tomatoes for picnics, a good way to keep them intact and fresh is to pour paraffin over them.

"All this I was thinking, as our feet slogged through the mud, for the roads were ill-kept then, and my mind was twisted with fear of death and murder, and I threw my arms round Paddy's neck and prayed him even now to turn back; the shawl fell back from my arms, and the cold numbed them at once, and the wind caught in my hair, and flung it in strands against Paddy's face, as I held him tight, tight.

"The cross-roads were but two hundred yards away, and suddenly, as I pleaded with him, I heard another sound above the calling and screaming of the wind. 'Twas the sound of a car-engine running! Faint it came, throbbing through the wind, and I drew back, against Paddy, as we stood still in the middle of the road, with the mud drawing at our feet.

"'Tis them!' I cried, fearful. 'Always they come in a car, the devils; run back, Paddy lad, we'll not face them.'

"Paddy's face was all grey, and his lips were tightly set; he put me behind him, and drew his gun. 'I'll not run; someone has betrayed me, and I'll find who 'tis, by Mary Mother,' he snarled.

"Then he set off, almost running, till he was about twenty yards from the cross-roads, when he stood still and shouted: 'Come out, yet blackguards! Come out, and murder me if you can! Come out, you Judas, and God rest your soul, for I'll put a bullet through your filthy body!'

"I screamed to him to stop, for I was half-demented, and ran after him, stumbling in the ruts, scarcely seeing for the hair blowing in my eyes; but I saw them! Mercy on God! They just came silently, and were standing there beneath the great old tree, three at them, cloaked by their hats and turned-up collars; I fell against Paddy, and tried to shield him, but he flung me away with all his strength, so that I fell in the mud.

"One of them fired; I saw a flame, and Paddy keel this way and that, till his knees collapsed under him, and he fell on his face in the road. Before I was up, they had fired three times more, and Paddy was writhing faintly; then it was I saw the other, sneaking away from the car lights into the shadow.

"I knew it was the traitor, and so did Paddy; as that fourth man raised one arm to beckon the others away, he lifted himself on one arm, and aimed his gun, waveringly. He fired, and the Judas dropped his arm, clutching at his hand, with a howl of pain; the others closed round him, and dragged him away, while I ran to my man.

"As I knelt to him, lifting his head to my breast, I heard the car roar and rush by. Then I was left alone, with Paddy dying in my arms, and his blood drenching my clothes; he stirred once, and muttered: 'Through the hand? Tell me father and the boys; through the hand I got him, and then more thickly: 'Macushla, kiss me!'

"I kissed him, and felt his body sink down, and a thin little sigh fluttered between our lips; I sat there for above an hour, rocking him in my arms, cold as I was, until Mike Leary came by in his cart, rather drunk, but sober enough to lift Paddy into the cart, and help me up after him. So we drove through the fierce cold night, Leary rocking on his seat and slapping at his horse, and me sitting among the potato sacks and still holding Paddy's bloody body.

"We reached home a half-hour later, and Leary got down at Paddy's door, and began to batter on it, though I begged him to be quiet for the poor mother's sake; but they came quickly, and flung wide the house, Jerry Halloran standing bare-necked there, and demanding what was the matter. 'Tis Paddy; the black beasts have shot him, gasps that fool man, Leary. A groan like the sound of death came from them in the doorway, and the men-folk came rushing out to the cart, and scrambled up beside me; Jerry stopped to lift me down, and murmur sympathy, but Sean and the father thought only of the poor body lying all broken among the dusty sacks.

"Tenderly they raised him and bore him from the cart, handling him as though he was but a newborn babe and murmuring. I stood stiff-limbed with holding my poor sweet so long, dumb with pain, till I heard a tiny whimper from the door; 'twas his mother, poor crushed soul, in her night-dress, with the wind tearing round her, leaning against the wall, hands clasping her head, and eyes set to the sight of the body. I went to her at once, but my comforting was of no use; she was stricken, and remained so. Only as they carried Paddy past her, she put one hand to his hair, with a strange dazed look, and muttered, 'Untidy hair; always untidy, Paddy ashore.'

"I could not listen to his wailing; the moaning of the women's voices tore my heart, and I rushed from the house, covering my ears to the sound, and trying to cover my soul to the sight of the black covered thing with the candles flaring round it.

"There I stayed in my room, and struggled with my pain; it was not them I cursed in the midst of my crying, but the beast who had betrayed him. But Paddy had marked him, and the brothers would find that marked man, and I would spit in his face before they shot him.

"And they found him next day, a wet day, when the town was covered with drifting rain and sleet, and few were out of doors. I had been watching all day by the window, my face pressed against the cold, wet-smelling pane, thinking too much, so that by evening I was trembling and racked with grief and madness, always seeing that gun spurt, and Paddy falling in the mud.

"As the evening began to drift in, thick shadows dropping to the street, I became more and more distraught. Ah 'twas the worst day I have ever lived.

"I heard a man running down the street. It was just after the clock said six, and all was dark, brooding dark; this man was running unevenly; his boots slithering on the puddles. He passed my window, panting—that terrible, hoarse panting that means a man is running through terror; I saw him as a blot in the dark, and his face was invisible.

"Then came the two others, but they were running smoothly, quietly, breathing regularly; they caught him up by the street corner, and of a sudden the stream of light from the lamp showed up his face as he huddled back against the wall; 'twas Flanagan, but his face was sharpened by terror, and his eyes bright with it. He seemed to be pleading, but they, they took hold of him, one to each arm, and took him away; there was a gun driven into his ribs, so that for fear he went, but I saw that his legs were all slack and trembling under him. Like a little old man's, so that they were almost carrying him. A little old man, all shrunken and fear-ridden, and he had been a tall, gay-laughing lad!

"Flanagan! And I had thought he loved Paddy. I tried to say to myself, 'Tis Paddy's murderer; a dirty traitor, who is going to suffer for it,' but I could only remember how he and Paddy used to play together, and how once he kissed me on market day, and laughed when I smacked his face. And now he had been hunted down, padding feet and hoarse breathing, and was going to die in the rain, all crumpled with fear. Ah, mercy of God! They were the bad, cruel days!

"Jerry told me all about that execution afterwards; how they took him to where Paddy had died, and there shot him, and threw his body into the ditch. He had told them that his hand had been torn on a nail, but they troubled not to look at the wound.

"Jerry would sit, gripping his hands together, staring in front of him. He dropped to his knees in the road and begged us not to kill him, plubbering, and saying he was innocent. Father pushed him away, and he clung to my legs till Sean hit him in the mouth and knocked him to the ground. Then he was quiet; only praying softly, while his eyes moved from one to the other of us. When we fired he screamed once and caught at his heart; then he toppled on to his face, and the blood ran from his mouth into the puddles—as he lay—quivering—Sean fired again into his brain, and then he and father dragged him to the ditch and pushed him in; he seemed to clutch at the clay as he went over, and his eyes and mouth were wide open. I was sick.

"That was what happened; nothing was said of it because of the times and because no one knew the full truth of it, but his mother cursed the whole family up and down the town, poor soul.

"And I, I could not stand Ireland after that, with the black misery on it, tearing and fighting within itself. Father died soon after, and I came to England to stay with my Auntie May. I got a job, and have stayed here ever since. I've no wish to go back, with everything different and Paddy dead. So here I am."

The man still held her hands; he pressed them gently as he said: "Poor Paddy! Poor little Maureen, in all that blood and death. If I could have been with you when it happened; but I had to skip too."

The girl was not listening; she was looking at his right hand, the hand whose palm lay, slightly turned towards her. Her eyes were incredulous, dazed.

The man saw that look, and his own eyes dropped quickly to the table. As that queer, livid colour overspread his face, and he drew his hands back, the girl spoke in a low, dull voice, as though all the world had fallen: "What is that scar on your hand, Michael?"

Musical, moonlight, glorious lake breezes with six hundred miles of sailing on the Canadian Pacific's Great Lakes vessels S.S. Assiniboia, Kewadin and Manitoba are at the disposal of passengers on the company's lines travelling from eastern to western Canada points or as a pleasant diversion on the returning journey for the small added cost of ten dollars for berth and meals each way.
This delightful prospect follows the announcement by the Canadian Pacific that four-piece orchestras will, for a period of nine weeks, dispense music on the Assiniboia and Kewadin en route while the vessels pass through Georgian Bay, across the northern part of Lake Huron, through the Sault Ste. Marie locks and thence to Port William on Lake Superior, a pleasant, lazy and restful journey of 39 hours from Port McNicoll or Owen Sound.
To all those who are planning a trip to or from the west, this economical optional trip embracing dancing, cozy cabins, plenty of deck space and luxuriously-appointed dining saloons; with glimpses of ever-changing scenery or bracing stretches of blue water, is one that cannot be overlooked. It is at the disposal of every vacationist and this season promises to be immensely popular not only with Canadians but with visitors to this country as well.

New Shanghai And Hongkew Wharf Two-Year's Work On New Structure Ended

2,300 FEET OF WHARF SPACE

The ever-changing Shanghai waterfront has again had a feature added to its face, with the completion of the Shanghai and Hongkew Wharf Company's Hongkew and Hun's wharves. This stretch of wharf, beginning at the property boundary line east of Chaoufoong Road continues for about 2,300 feet up to Koocheong Road, and has been built during a construction period of about two years.

The part east of Chaoufoong Road, comprising a frontage of about 800 feet, is planned as a combined lighter harbour and wharf. The lighter basin, surrounded on three sides by reinforced concrete piers, and on the fourth by a wall of reinforced concrete sheetpiles, is big enough to accommodate four to five of the biggest local steel lighters, which then can be worked there without occupying any of the much needed wharf front. The riverside pier is broader than those at the sides, and may be used for berthing of ships of deeper draft.

Loading Facilities Good

Of technical problems, this part of the construction presented nothing new or difficult. The piers and riverside wharf are of the usual "composite" type, meaning that they consist of a trestle work in reinforced concrete, supported by long Douglas fir piles. The wharf deck is designed for an evenly distributed load of 500 lbs. per sq. ft., and for a concentrated load of 20,000 lbs. anywhere. These loadings will allow practically any type of cargo to be unloaded on to the wharf and temporarily stacked there, besides providing for cranes of the portable type, and for wharf trucks with trailers of the most modern kind to be used for the handling of cargo.

In addition to these loadings anywhere, the construction includes girders for the heavier crane equipment, which consists of a 10-ton crane and a 2-ton transporter. The crane is of the level-lifting type, capable of lifting 10 tons at 50 feet per minute, or 5 tons at 100 feet per minute at a maximum radius of about 40 feet. Slewing and lifting are carried out by independent motors, the travelling motor serves a dual purpose.

As it was desired to have the crane travel on all four sides of the lighter basin, a special jacking arrangement was incorporated enabling the complete crane, together with its load, in all about 80 tons, to be jacked up from the rails and the travelling bogies turned through 90 degrees, thus enabling the crane to travel in its new direction. The motor, normally used for travelling is connected by means of a special clutch to the jacking motion and so carries out its dual purpose. This arrangement was decided upon instead of having to construct a turntable at each corner, which would have involved a greater expenditure and greatly complicated the design of the wharf structure.

The transporter erected in the same area is unique in the fact that it is the first of its kind to be erected on the Shanghai river front, and possibly in the Far East. It was designed to span the entire width of the lighter basin, and it is capable of also travelling the entire length.

Transporter Specially Designed

The construction of the transporter is somewhat special in view of the fact that the bridge on which the crab travels is entirely separate from the legs and is pivoted on hinges so that any movement of the wharf and legs is not transferred to the bridge. The bridge is extended over the quayside by a roller boom which is arranged to telescope into the bridge for clearance. This is necessary to avoid fouling ships' superstructures in case it is desirable to travel along the wharveside.

On the landside a cantilever extension is provided so that the maximum travel of the crab in the bridge is about 250 feet.

The travelling motors on the two outside legs of the transporter are electrically and mechanically synchronized to avoid caterpillar-like of the structure when travelling. The travelling motors and the rolling boom motor are controlled from a point on the bridge which makes it impossible for the operator to travel longitudinally without having first withdrawn the extended roller boom.

Power Cable Safe

In order to prevent any possibility of accidents to persons on the wharf, a special scheme was devised to carry power to both the crane and transporter. The power cable is laid underneath the wharf and at convenient points plugboxes are provided to connect the cable to the two structures. The plugboxes are so designed that it is

Ten-Ton Crane Used

The 10-ton crane is, on the shore-side, supported on an independent system of piles, capped with suitable girders in reinforced concrete, and the shore tower of the transporter is carried by the sheetpiles in the bunding, which for this reason are made longer than called for by earth pressure only, on the stretch over which the transporter is travelling.

The transverse stiffness and bracing of piers and riverside wharf is taken care of by batter piles, enabling particularly the wharf to take possible bumps from berthing steamers, and pulls from the mooring ropes. The mooring facilities consist of a set of bollards for ships, and cleats for smaller craft.

From west side of Chaoufoong Road to east side of Koocheong Road, for a stretch of about 2,020 feet, a continuous wharf has been built. Over much of this part, the designer was faced with the bunding with a clear height of about 40 feet, and to be able to withstand the practically liquid pressure of the backfilling.

The normal line to which the wharf's edge has to conform, is here a distance of about 150 feet in front of the old wooden wharf which the new construction replaced. This distance gradually decreases, until it reaches about 100 feet near Koocheong Road. The intention was to fill in this space gradually as material became available, in the meantime taking care of the cross traffic by means of temporary bridges. These bridges would also be necessary for conveying heavy wheeled traffic across the newly filled in area for some years in the future.

The details of the wharf itself are much the same as for the piers in the lighter harbour. The loadings for the deck are the same, viz. 500 lbs. per sq. ft. evenly distributed, and/or 20,000 lbs. concentrated anywhere. Besides, cranes of similar type to those in the lighter harbour are provided for the whole length of the wharf. No new crane equipment has so far been installed, but the intention is in due time to have cranes of somewhat the same type as those in the lighter harbour.

Construction Details Given
In choosing the details of construction for the wharf as well as for the lighter harbour, there were several points to be considered.

One was how to get a good connection between the wooden piles and the reinforced concrete superstructure. Another was the fact that the lower half of the superstructure is regularly flooded twice a day by the rising tide. As a consequence of the daily flooding, it was decided to prefabricate as many of the R.C. members as possible, thereby saving falsework and forms as well as time. The quality of the concrete and its placing in the forms were also improved inasmuch as it was easier to control.

The wharf deck is unwatered by means of cast iron scuppers, placed in each panel. The surface of the whardeck is given ample slopes towards these scuppers, and the result is nearly immediate run-off of all rainwater.

The whole length of the wharf is to allow temperature working, divided by expansion joints into altogether seven independent sections.

Low Water Platform

At fairly even intervals along the wharf are made low-water platforms, to which stairs from the rear are leading down. The intention with these platforms is to facilitate delivery of cargo to native lighters when the height from the upper wharf deck makes it difficult to deliver direct.

Stability Tested

It may be mentioned that the stability of the whole structure already has been put to a rather severe test. As will be remembered, S.S. Shawheing sank some time ago after a collision right outside Hun's Wharf. It was soon found that the only possible method of removing the wreck was to blast it to pieces, and take it up bit by bit. This blasting is nearly completed after two to three months of work during which period several changes, some of four to five lbs. weight, have been fired every day. The shock and concussion of every explosion can be distinctly felt more than a thousand feet away, so that the stonedike, the nearest part of which is not more than about 75 feet away from the wreck, must have been subjected to a rather severe shaking. In spite of this, it has only settled a few inches during the time the blasting has taken place, and there is absolutely no measurable effect to be found on the levels of the wharf deck.

Another interesting feature in connection with this construction is the effect it has on the flow of water in the river, and consequent silting or scouring. In coming out to the normal line, the wharf closes the last gap in the line on that side of the river for a considerable distance. One should consequently hope that it should be possible to maintain a reasonable depth of water along the new wharf and neighbouring properties without too much dredging, as it may be taken for granted that the normal line was originally laid out with a view to obtaining a natural flow of water with a minimum amount of silting. It is yet too early to say anything about the results along the frontage under review, but there are indications that the draft of the new wharf will remain unchanged. As a rather peculiar and unexpected phenomenon in this connection it has been noticed that the effect of the backwash from passing steamers has been considerably increased, a fact for which it is rather hard to give a satisfactory explanation.

The wharf is now receiving the finishing touches from the contractor's hands, and it is believed that the contracting firm, Messrs. Voh Kee Construction Company, have good reason to be satisfied with their two years' labour. The wharf was designed and supervised by Messrs. E. J. Muller, consulting civil engineers of Shanghai.

TWENTY MEN ATTACK HOUSE
AT POKFULAM

A massed attempt at armed robbery, in which a man was shot in the hand, took place last night at 1.25 a.m., when 20 men, armed with various weapons, including one revolver, attacked the home of Chong Tan-yen, grass-cutting contractor to the Dairy Farm, at Pokfulam.
Chong's son, Chong Tin, who was sleeping at the time, was disturbed. He gave the alarm, and, together with his father, rushed out. In the melee which followed Chong Tan-yen was shot in the hand, after which the robbers made off.
It is suspected that the men were ex-employees of Chong, who had been discharged on Wednesday. They are reported to have spoken Hakka and Hoklo dialects.
